The Seventies. A chance for each of us to take a look, a close look, at ourselves, our friends, and our world. A chance to inquire into the whys and wherefores of everyday life. A chance to open our minds to new patterns, images, structures. A chance to develop our potentials and meet the challenges the decade sets before us.

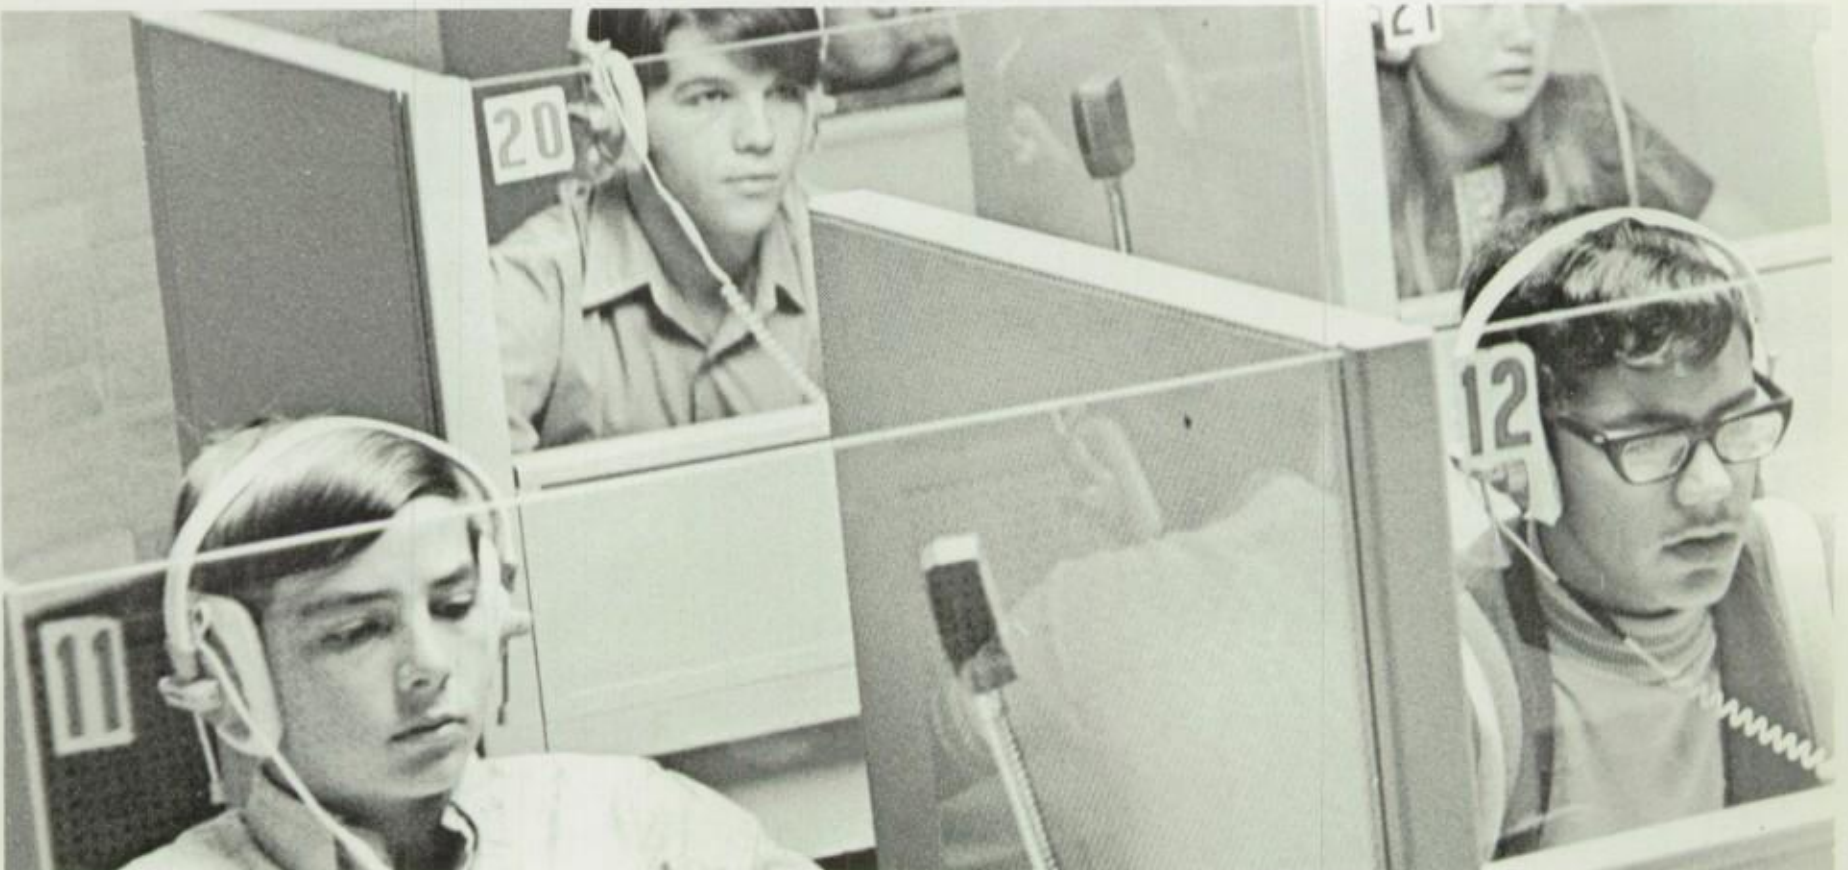

With new trends in thought, in fashion, in involvement, I have to find my own place in the new ideal. As the decade evolves, I can be flexible and change along with it.

A school year. It seems so long when I'm sitting in each class. Yet when I look back over the years that have passed, and when I look ahead to the years I still face, the time I've spent dwindles in perspective.

There are ideals open to us: to live in the new decade, to find our place in the world of today, and to pinpoint the meanings of our values. There are so many choices for us to make, we must learn to channel all our efforts in one direction. It is a hard task, but if we take the decision in stride, we can build it up into something of which we can be proud.

This school year has begun a new decade. It is a time for us to begin again, to solve all the old problems that plague us. It is a time to get involved, to speak up, to reach out, to have fun. A whole new road lies open before us... waiting.

*I've been greeted

Challenging our minds

When I see the world advance in areas of ecology, in sociology, in human realtions, I feel that I have to read all I can to know exactly how, when, why, and where each contribution takes place. My views, if they are presented with knowledge to back them up, are all the more valid.

Discussions can raise questions in my mind. When I hear the views of others, I begin to question my own ideas. Are they fair? Do they consider both sides of the issue? As I reconsider my standpoints, I have to alter them and revise them with an open mind.

The hardest part of learning a new language is expression and pronunciation. Not only must I know what to say, but also how to say it. In the language lab, with earphones and microphones, I can hear my mistakes, find the right way, and correct myself. This way I feel I'm on the road to mastery.

When I can do my own experimentation and discover my own formulas for solving problems, I feel that I am gaining important knowledge. I can grow a salt crystal, find my blood type, or even observe a heart in action. Each new experience feeds my curiosity, and curiosity is the key which unlocks the door to discovery.

Expressing our feelings

Performing and creating are forms of giving. I want to do my best for the audience, to give them everything I possibly can. I want to add to the whole show with my performance. My ideas, my thoughts, my personality are projected to the audience through my actions and creativity. Not only must I prove myself to them, but also I must realize for myself my full potential.

When I'm up at the lectern earnestly giving my views, I have an outlet not only for my ideas, but also for my emotions. When I put everything I have behind my words, I am confident that I am sincere and honest. I come down feeling elated, glad that I have said what I think and feel.

I can let out my feelings in my art class when I have in my hands a pencil, a brush, or a block of clay. I'm able to create something that reflects my thoughts, something I can see and touch. Just knowing that I've created can help to keep my emotions from building up inside.

Challenging for first chair in orchestra, struggling to get that vibrato out of my voice before the concert, or learning the new marching routine for the next half-time performance are all ways I can express my desire for musical participation. When I have achieved the goal I set for myself, then I can turn to work on the next step toward my overall goal of excellence.

Keeping in step

With the racing pace of events nowadays, I find that I have my hands full just trying to keep up. I know I have football practice, and I know that I have to study for that exam. I guess I have to learn to condition myself and to budget my time so I won't let the fast-moving tempo leave me behind.

Today the main objective for a person is to be an individual. He can accomplish this in many ways. His clothes, his actions, and his speech all work together to create some sort of image for the public eye. He can keep in step with the fast-paced world, or simply go his own path, regardless of what others think and say.

Showing our spirit

Keeping Maine South Number One is the job of all the students. Those on Pep Club Council, Pom-pom, and cheerleading all help to get the rest of my friends involved. Cheering gives a real boost to the players as well as to the crowd. I feel as though I'm right on the field with the same urge to win as the team has.

Saturday afternoon, for me, is always a relief. Going to the football games, cheering, talking and laughing with my friends; all this is a welcome break from the daily routine of school.

Going to one of South's pep rallies is always an exhilarating experience for me. The Pep Song being played by the band, the vivacious cheerleaders, and the presentation of the players all add to the excitement and help to lift the spirit of the players, urging them on to another victory.

Watching the spirit queens being crowned at Kick-Off Dance always makes me think about events at South that promote spirit; sport activities, membership drives, fund-raising sales, Brotherhood Week. All these activities, sports-minded or not, are a part of the spirited personality so evident at South.

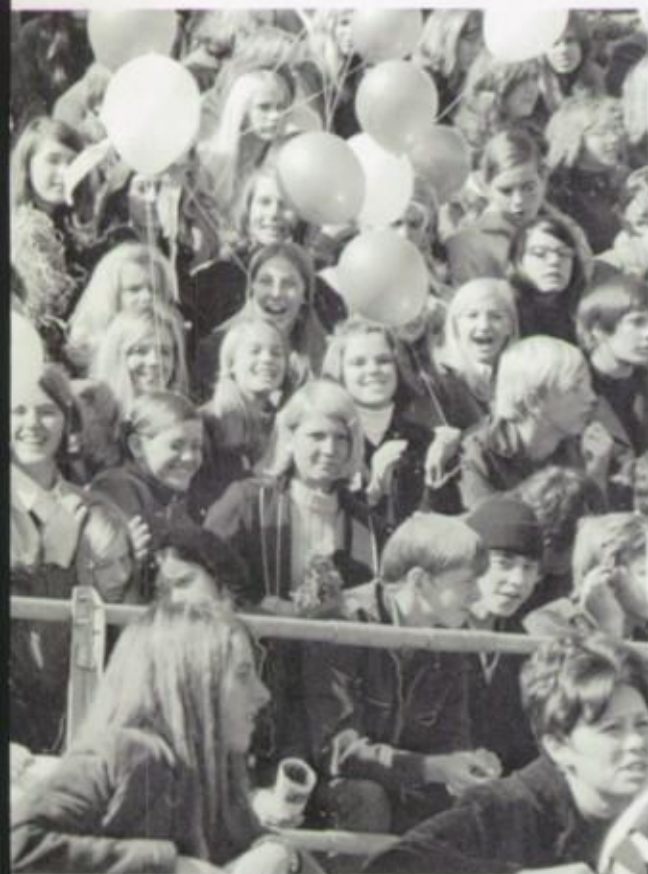

Joining in fun

Every day it seems harder for me to keep up with all that goes on at school. Activities like football games, intramurals, and clubs take so much of my time that it's hard to know exactly what is happening.

During Homecoming week, building the floats, besides doing homework, left little time for eating and sleeping. It is all hectic, but fun, especially being in the half-time parade, keeping my fingers crossed that our creation will place in the final judging.

Participating in events

I can meet new people and learn about almost any subject I choose by joining some of the clubs here at South. There are so many to pick from that I can always find something that will fulfill my interests. I don't have to be talented to become a part of a certain club, as long as I have a definite desire to participate.

Working with a group of friends to promote a fund-raising drive or a charity project gives me a feeling of satisfaction. I feel that I've not only contributed to a worthy cause, but also I've become a part of an activity that gives me a chance to meet people.

The curriculum at South is so varied that it's not hard to find something to do every minute. I can help out backstage, practice with my team after school, work on posters for a community project, or pitch in to build a float at Homecoming time. With so many activities available, I can't imagine being idle for a moment.

I want to know the people around me, and I want to react with them to any situation that arises around school or the community. I can test my reactions against theirs in any form of expression: discussions in class, meeting with fellow club members, or just through simple conversations.

Guidance promotes greater student awareness

Greater availability of information proved to be an accomplished goal in the realm of guidance. For instance, class assemblies were eliminated in an effort to incorporate more information into the homeroom period. Sophomores gained greater awareness of job diversity through the homeroom closed circuit TV program. In addition, the career resource center made every effort to maintain accurate and up-to-date information by obtaining the latest catalogues and brochures from colleges and careers. The health office was one other outlet for student guidance, for students found proper care in time of illness from both Maine South nurses.

Leslie Green brought in injured Linda Peterson, and speedily got the situation under control.

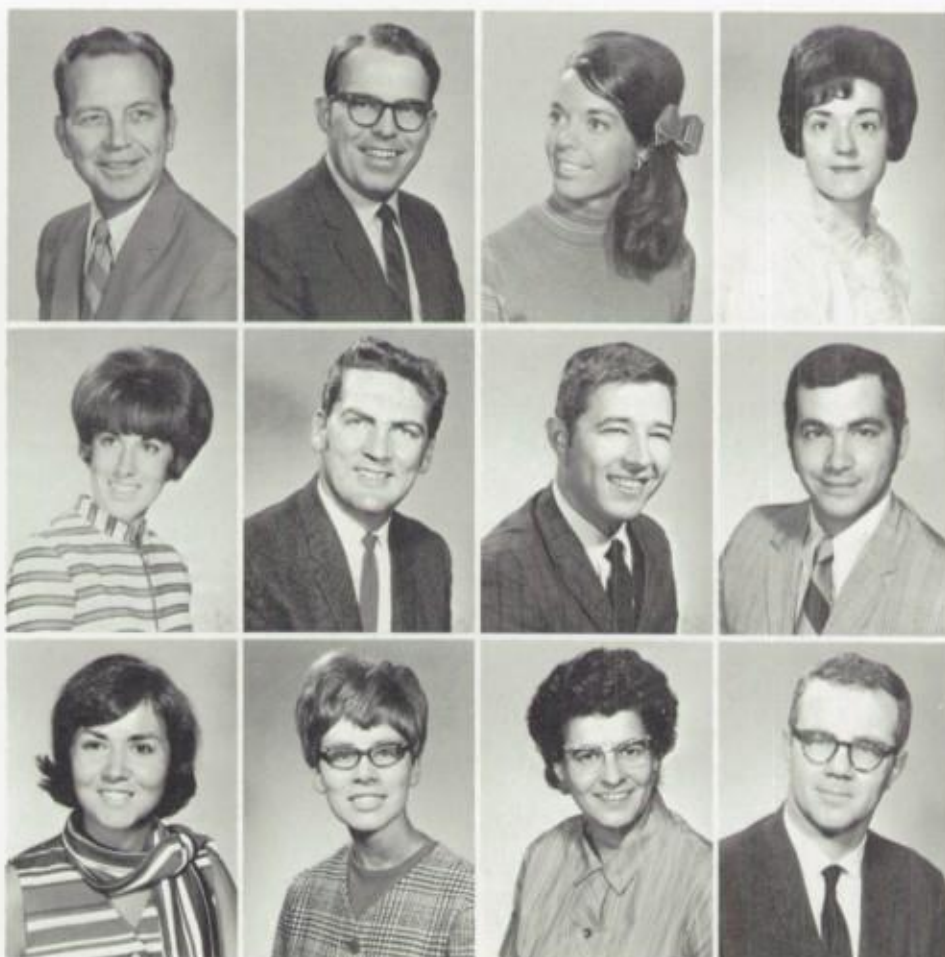

With Mr. Kolar's guidance, many students found the new Consumer Education course interesting.

Business department boasts new addition

The Business Education Department opened this year with a new machine shorthand course, which offered practice on the steno print machine. The department boasted not only new equipment, but also a total of twenty-two courses, including typing, college notetaking, and business data processing. The latter course made use of an IBM 360 computer which in the future will be hooked up by telephone to the other Maine schools.

Another important new addition to the business curriculum was Consumer Education, now required by the state for graduation. In this nine week course, students learned the values and problems found in today's marketing world.

Conquering shorthand involved the memorization of a different symbol for each and every word.

Math courses offer great variety

The Mathematics Department this year gave students of all abilities the opportunity to compete and achieve success on their own level. The courses varied from the basics of algebra for freshmen, to calculus and analytical geometry for seniors. Among the course offerings was a new junior course using the Program 101, a table top computer. Its purpose was to provide students with the ability to organize and to classify their ideas, with an emphasis on problem solving. Students interested in other dimensions of the computer field could work with the school's time-sharing computer. On their own time, they learned to program and to apply the abilities of this instrument.

Probability and Statistics benefited Greg Gann, Mike Henderson, Laura Skup and Maureen Conklin.

Library expands privileges and opportunities

This year the library took on new dimensions with the initiation of several new policies. Students were able to make use of the library privilege during any of their study periods. Unrestricted use of carrels and acceptance of quiet conversation offered expanded opportunities for study. Conference rooms were made available for the purpose of teacher-student conferences as well as for steno typing practice. Library activity also included audio visual aids and the reading center. Audio Visual members maintained and distributed all audio visual equipment, while the Reading Center offered students an opportunity to increase reading speed and comprehension.

South students found the Reading Center to be advantageous to the self-instruction needed.

The Audio Visual staff benefited immensely from the skilled help of Jim Scott and George Kay.

Getting together and catching up on the sports was exciting for some of Maine South's seniors.

Mrs. Roberts devised various methods to make French I a little less foreign to her pupils.

Languages offer different speech concepts

The Language Department, headed by Miss Marion Fisher, was once again active in curricular as well as extra-curricular activities. Russian, Italian, French, Spanish, Latin, and German were offered to the students. Besides sponsoring the various clubs, the department also held their annual awards at which time teachers presented their students with the fruits of their labors — recognition of hard work and long hours. Language students understand the reason why a foreign language is required in school. Not only does a language show the difference between our country and others, but it also gives students a better concept of their own language; by studying the parts of speech.

Student participation highlights English instruction

According to Mr. Davis, chairman of the English Department, a gradual change was evident in this year's English classes. An increasing number of students were participating in the actual instruction process, leading to a decrease of the onesided lectures by teachers with more emphasis on student interaction. Constructive oral involvement proved to greatly aid students in communicating to others. Therefore, the English classes of the '70's are succeeding in one of their primary objectives: communication. As usual, English teachers at South continued to expand on new methods of instruction, such as extensive use of audio-visual aids, tape recordings, and over-head-projector transparencies, which included those for students with particular problems, such as spelling.

Mr. Martello planned each school day to be beneficial to both himself and his many students.

The Maine South Drama Department offered courses ranging from Speech to Stagecraft in which students were able to express their creative qualities verbally and artistically, as well as through traditional stage action. Often their efforts in all three areas were given opportunity for practical application while working on the many casts and crews of various productions. The Radio and TV course offered the possibility for interested students to delve into these new experimental areas. WMTH and wide use of closed circuit TV provided a direct outlet for exploration of the infinite possibilities of this field. The one overall goal of the varying facets of the Drama Department, however, was to continually provide the opportunity for students to express themselves individually in the many aspects that drama offers.

Bob Farrell and Don Jonswold performed a final show with Mr. Wagoner before he was drafted.

Science expands students' research opportunities

One of the most talked about issues in the Science Department was the pass-fail system. Half of all the students enrolled in chemistry took their lab course on a pass-fail basis, in which no letter grade was assigned, but instead the students received an S for satisfactory or a U for unsatisfactory.

A total of nineteen different courses was offered in the department. These included geology, earth science, three courses in biology, and two courses in physics, chemistry, and physical science. Laboratory and field work gave many students opportunities to do their own research, while science seminar allowed future scientists to pursue their own interests in the field of their choice.

Labs in chemistry needed not only very precise numbers but also Kim Schuber's close attention.

Social Science embraces contemporary view

This year's Social Science Department offered a variety of different courses. Humanities and Anthropology continued for their second year, while Afro-American History was added to the list of elective courses for the academic year 1971-72. A speaker's program presented throughout the year enabled all social science classes to meet with social, political, and historical events on a first-hand basis. Ann Evans, Con-Con Delegate; Roman Pucinski, a local politician; and Floyd Fulle were among those speaking to classes. Generally the department tried to offer a contemporary view of all aspects of this field.

Art Department stresses new horizons

This year's Art program was one of experimentation in the individual level. Photography II classes created their own movie, while members of Art IV worked to design a multimedia display and experimentation with environmental space art. Many of the new projects included the use of movies, slide projects, psychedelic lighting, and black lights. Other classes were busy working with ceramics, welding, and wood cuts. During the entire year, students' work was displayed throughout the library. As a new addition this year, students used colored-carrel walls as background for any spontaneous creations. In the spring, the annual Art Fair provided an opportunity for students to display and possibly sell their projects.

Talented students learn music skills

John Binder, through many years of practice, had mastered many skills needed to play well.

The Music Department enabled students to develop their music talent, whether it be the history and basics of much or playing an instrument in the various bands and orchestras. Vocal inclinations were polished to perfection from Boys' Chorus and Girls' Chorus to the Concert Choir. Hard practice and excellence were quite prevalent in the high-classed Concert Orchestra. In addition to the various concerts performed during the year, the department also contributed to the annual V-Show. Their own production, the spring musical Brigadoon, truly exemplified the excellence and hard work of all members of the musical department.

Loads of practice made the honor of singing in Concert Choir a reality to many South students.

Donna Huber concentrated on her music so that she could produce heavenly sounds on her harp.

Industrial Education prepares for future

Industrial Education Department, headed by Mr. Stanley Bentall, offered students an interesting and varied program, as the department worked diligently to make Industrial Education one of the most interesting areas offered at South. The students in the program became acquainted with the history, growth, and development of materials, products and processes of industry. Problem-solving experiences helped students apply the principles of science, mathematics and other related subjects, showing the vocational and academic variety within the department.

Home Economics exhibits many facets

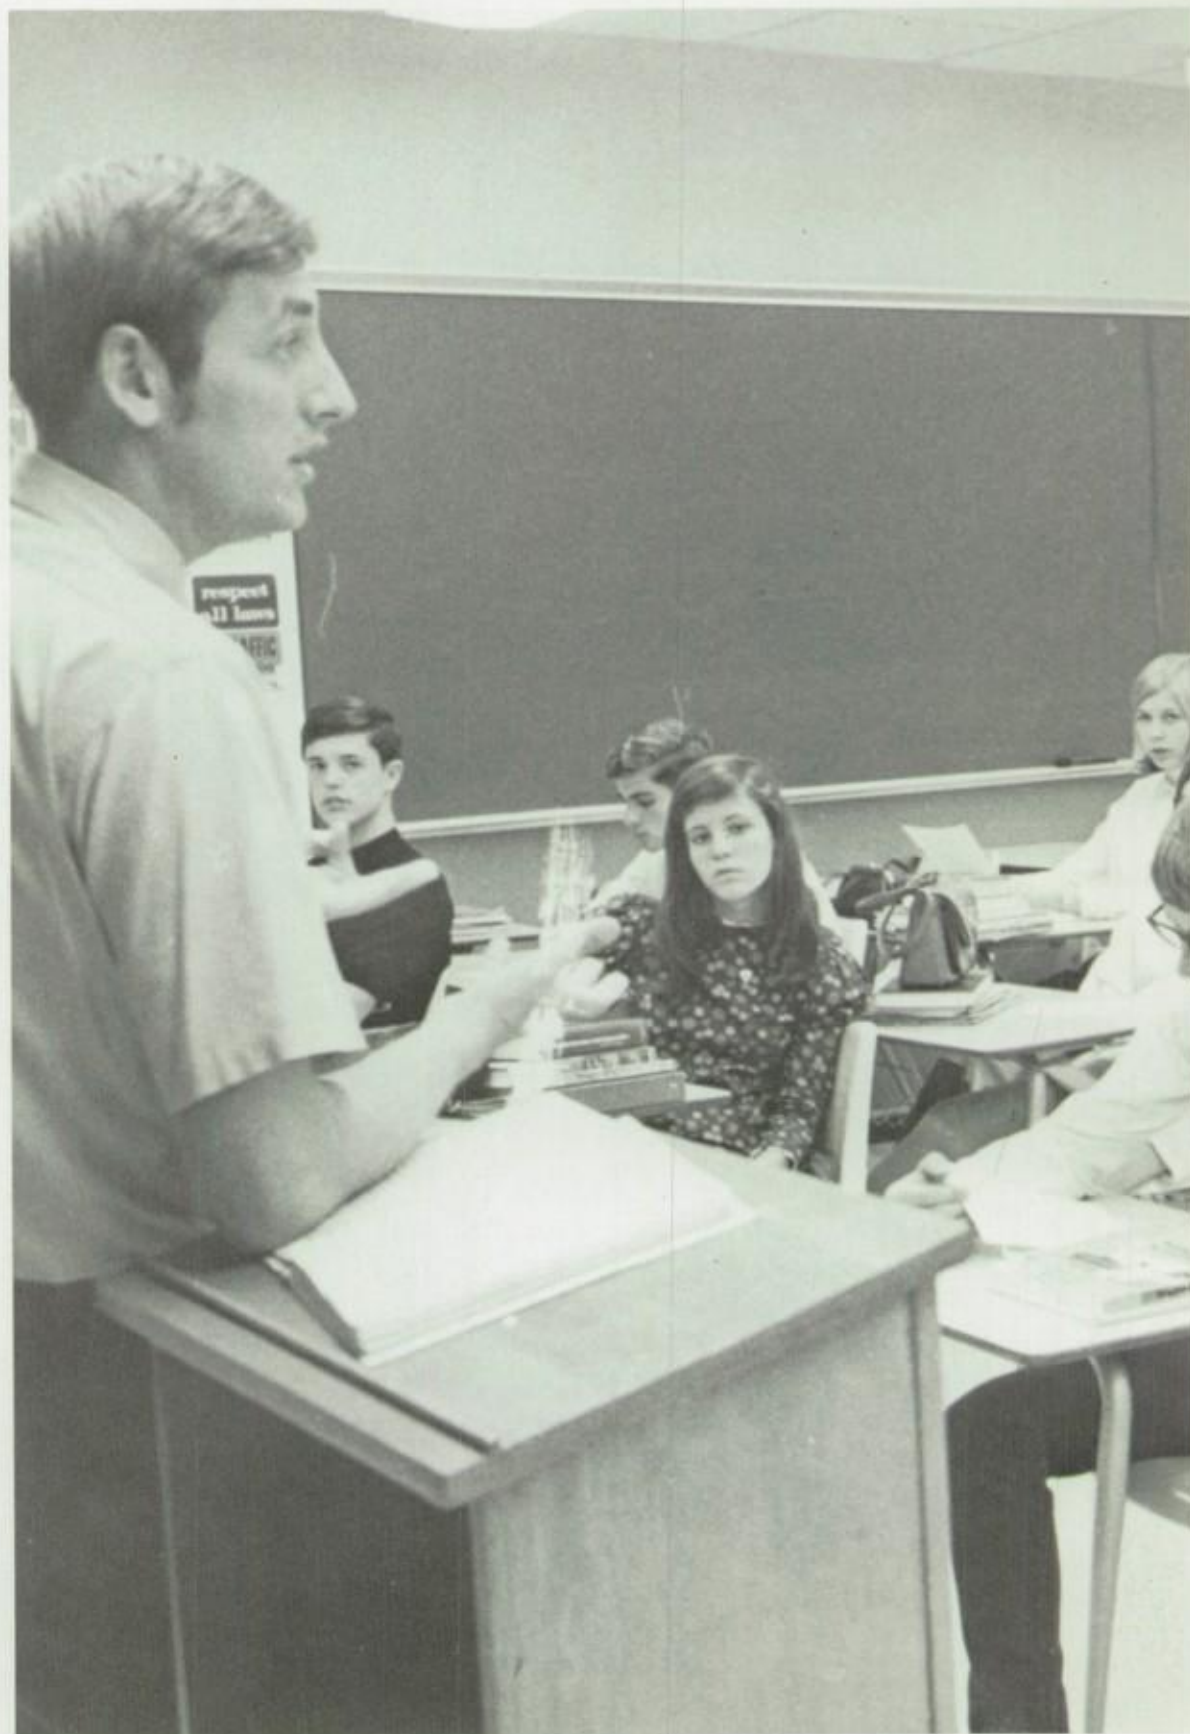

The Home Ec. Department offered students the opportunity to delve into the varying aspects of Home Economics, ranging from sewing to psychology. Throughout the year those passing the Home Ec. area were able to smell the delicious aroma of their cuisine as well as see the original fashions that were displayed. Of particular interest, however, were the playing toddlers that participated in the popular Child Development program. All courses sought to prepare students to be able to cope with the problems of their future daily lives.

Sophomore Kim Griffiths learned many essential techniques of sewing in her Clothing II class.

Driver's Education improves training curriculum

The Driver's Education department once more worked to provide classroom and behind-the-wheel training to all juniors and seniors. This year's course has also allowed for a four quarter sophomore program, including health and consumer education. The new program eliminated the necessity of taking Driver's Safety as a junior and increased the probability of taking behind-the-wheel training that year. Local car dealers provided all Maine district schools with new 1971 models on a free-loan basis in an effort to maintain quality cars for the driving department. These new additions will be of special interest to summer school students who would now enjoy the comforts of air conditioning.

The health course at South, added to the curriculum last year, was required for graduation by the class of 1973 and ensuing graduates. The courses, one for the freshmen and the other for sophomores, are a quarter in length each year. The health teachers, Mr. Jones, Mr. Higgins, and Miss Purdy enthused students with enlightened class discussions, the overhead projector, and many interesting and provocative films. The freshman course of study included personal hygiene, first aid, and a basic study of drugs. At the same time the sophomores were learning about ecology, which was basically an intense study of pollution and its effect on us today and in the future, and an in depth study of drugs.

Girls' PE relieves classroom monotony

The Girls' Physical Education program sought to expose girls to a variety of competitive sports ranging from basketball to fencing. Daily P.E. classes provided an opportunity for basic instruction, while intermural teams and sessions maintained an outlet for individual excellence. In all four classes, intramural fencing, volleyball, and archery teams offered in-school competition as inter-school tennis and badminton and tennis teams created opportunities for even more strenuous competition between girls from other schools. By working with teachers on such events, the girls in the Leader program helped both the faculty and the students.

The Boys' Physical Education program at Maine South combines vigorous exercise with a chance to learn and play major sports. After-school intermurals in almost every sport supplemented the regular gym schedule as class spirit prevailed. In Class, under the direction of a fine coaching staff, boys learned the skills of tennis, basketball, soccer, badminton, weightlifting, cross country, track, and other sports offered by the department. During the spring of the year, the girls' and the boys' classes combined to participate in dancing for freshmen and sophomores and roller skating and volleyball for juniors and seniors.

Homecoming means all around excitement

With the prospect of an exciting game ahead, South students could also look forward to the judging of the float competition. Amid such entries as "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" and "Hang 'Em High," seniors walked off with top honors for "How the West was Won." The game, which ended in a 57-22 victory over the Niles West Indians, boosted the players' high spirits even higher, and made an exciting day even more exciting. The final event of the day, the dance, was a great success, and students from all classes attended to top off the excitement of the day with an entertaining evening.

The shock of being elected Homecoming Queen was expressed by April when the announcement of her election was made during half-time.

First place in the car division was captured by Home Ec Club with their float appropriately titled "Ten Little Indians." Many spectators were on hand to view the floats during the Homecoming Parade.

The waving of banners sold by the Distributive Ed Club added to the spirit shown by all fans.

"How the West Was Won" was the title for the seniors winning float. The theme being movie titles, many clever names were suggested but the seniors proved their imagination by grabbing first place.

In South's victory over Niles West, Roger Sauter proved to be a valuable asset to the team due to efforts he put forth in helping to gain the win which so many enthusiastic fans were counting on.

Homecoming means victory for many

This year's Homecoming activities featured the annual parade through town, showing off the finished floats to the music of the marching band. In the afternoon, a gigantic crowd was on hand to watch the Hawks devastate the Niles West Indians with a final score of 57-22. During the half-time activities, last year's Homecoming Queen Patty Magnuson gave up her crown to this year's winner April Everding, amidst the cheers of the enthusiastic crowd. At the dance that night, April got her reward, and the football players got theirs, in the form of a long line of admiring gridders. The dance theme "The Best Years of Our Lives," fit in perfectly with the overall mood.

Maine South's Hawk mascot entertained the crowd and cheered the team to victory.

Maine South's marching band again, with their style and syncopation, attracted many a listener to join the excitement of our Homecoming parade. Performing with them was majorette Krista McLean.

Nancy Barry, a member of class council and the Pom-Pon Squad, was escorted by Dan Mojica.

Karen Broker, a member of the MS cheerleading squad, was escorted by Mike Bonk.

To add a bit of humor to this year's Homecoming Assembly, a short performance about a star football player was presented by Dave Veerman and Bob Wolgemuth, both Campus Life Staff members.

Jan McAuliff, a member of the cheerleading squad, was being escorted by Rick Reinke.

An active member in Student Council activities, LuAnn Moak was escorted by senior Bill Green.

Highlighting the evening's activities, April received an autographed football from the team.

Bill Peterson and Sue Stoneberg invented an unique style of movement at the Homecoming Dance.

Nancy Barry and Dan Mojica were voted queen and king of the prom during "Lair du Temps."

South students found a good way to relax and enjoy themselves by going to the many dances held at the school. The Kick-Off dance started the year off with the football season and the crowning of the spirit queens. Later, the Christmas formal, sponsored by Boys' Club, offered winter dance entertainment for many couples. The Girls' Choice dance in the spring, backed by Girls' Club, was a turn-about affair for which the girls invited the boys and usually footed the bill for the evening. The variety of dances gave students a chance to meet friends, talk together, and have an enjoyable evening.

South students attend seasonal dances

Mike Novak introduced Foreign Exchange Student Sirkku Suopanki to the Christmas formal.

This time Jackie Kato picked up Tom Mattick for the ever popular Girls' Choice Dance.

Super Hero Chris Mahaffey enchanted the estimable Kyle Conforti in a scene from "Campus Capers."

Despite Kati Farrell's joy, Bruce Ross cringed when his mother-in-law, Kati Lane, appeared.

V-Show combines talent and work

A variety of acts and many facets of talent were represented in this year's V-show. The production played to packed houses, and the fine blend of comedy, song, and dance held attractions for every viewer. Special effects of lighting, sound, and scenery gave variety to the act divisions, and the combined efforts of the talented cast utilized the stage facilities to their best advantage. More than three hundred students contributed their talents to an outstanding production. Through the hard work of stage managers, production heads, crews, and cast, the Spirit of '71 came through the weekend of shows with flying colors.

Chris Mahaffey appealed to a feathered Chris Scholfield to the popular tune "Rubber Ducky."

Over a cup of coffee, Kyle Conforti and Jean Forrest complained about the generation gap.

Sirkku Suopanki added foreign flavor to the V-Show with a dance interpretation of "Alfie."

A confident Bounine plotted with Chernov a charade that could bring them much fame and money.

The Dowager Empress, a cold, embittered woman, was not impressed by Bounine's new Anastasia.

Maine South continued their tradition of theatrical excellence with their production of Anastasia, the Senior Class play. Prominent acting ability was evident in both major and minor characters. Janet Knapp, Rick Spatafora and Nancy Mellon were cast for the leading roles. Not only was the cast effective in presenting the plot, but the scenery and the costumes supported the quality of perfection throughout the play. The performance required unity between cast and crew. All the people involved worked closely with each other to make the play a success, and everyone could say that they had gained valuable experience in theatrical and acting techniques. It was not only the acting ability but also the backstage rapport that made the play a success.

Enthusiasm runs high for J.B.

This year, Maine South's Drama Department presented J.B. as its arena play. Although it is rarely categorized as a religious play, J.B. is based on the Book of Job and thus concerns man's struggle with faith. Encountering tragedy, J.B. is faced with a decision between God and temptation. Members of the cast were all pleased by the way the ancient Biblical story related so well to modern society. Both cast and crew, headed by Jan Knapp, student director, and Marilyn Woytowicz, assistant student director, upheld Maine South's tradition of dramatic quality. The leading roles were Rick Spatafora as Nickles, Jom Scott as Mr. Zuss, Teresa Pfister as Saran, and Calvin Churchman held the title role. Lynn Sutton was Construction Head, Becky Morris was Paint Head, Roy Pahnke was Lighting Head, Nora Donahue was Sound Head, and Dick Stinson was Prop Master.

Sarah, J.B.'s wife, portrayed by Teresa Pfister, wanted to "Curse God and die" for her misery.

J.B., a challenge to the Arena Play Production Staff: Gary Cartwright, Stage Manager; Mr. Chastain, Marilyn Woytowicz, Assistant Student Director; Jan Knapp, Student Director.

Finally, J.B. and Sarah realized that with love one is able to accept life on its own terms.

Calvin Churchman lamented to God "Show me my guilt," after family and fortune perish.

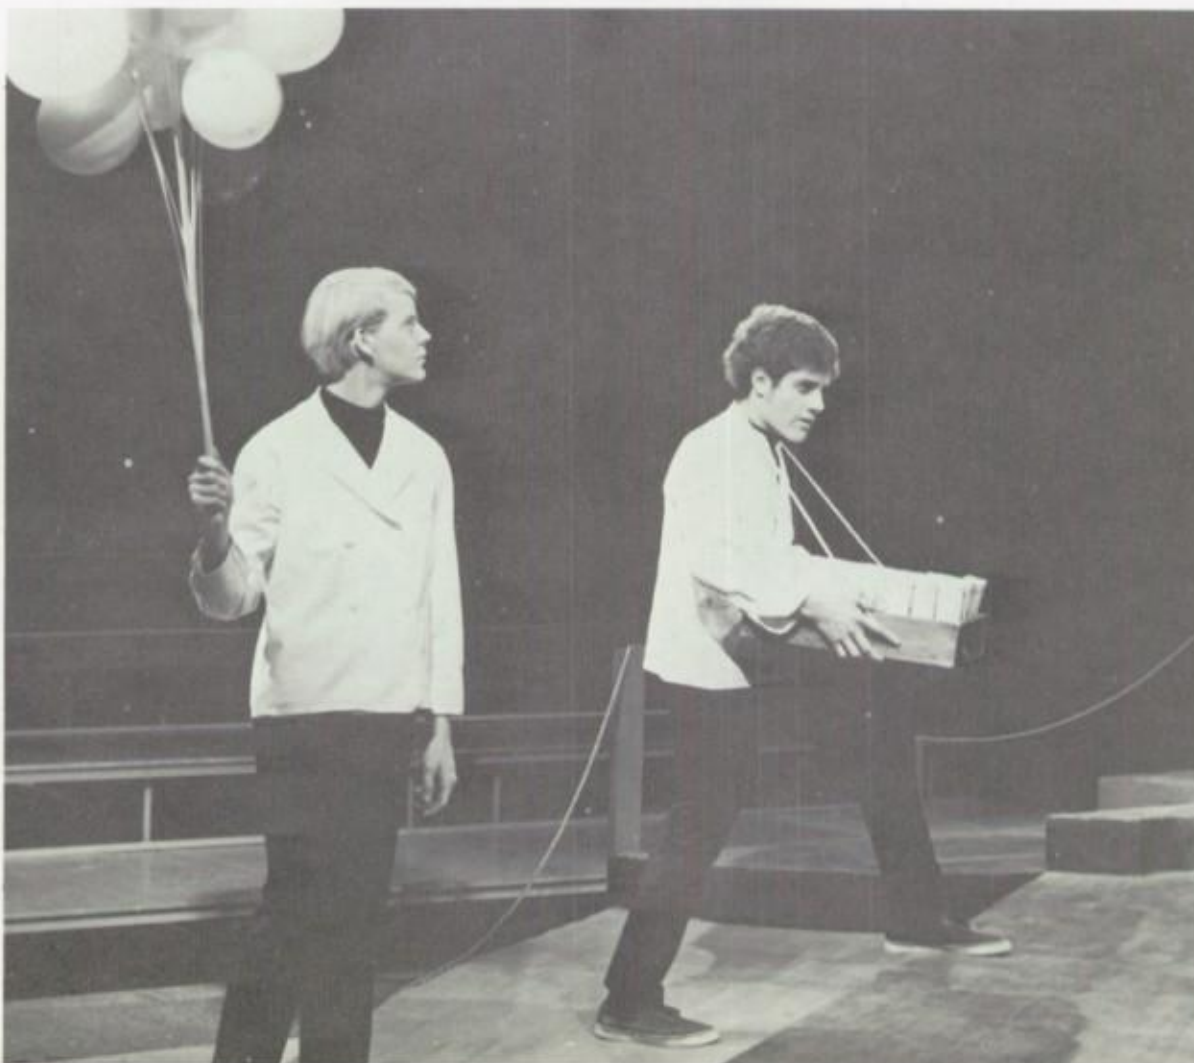

Eliphaz and Bildad tried to convince J.B. that there is no justification for his suffering.

The Circus Venders decided "this is it, Heaven and Earth" and played God and Satan.

Steve Miller held the lead role of Tommy, who is enchanted with Fiona, played by Cathy Cox.

Steve Monz, cast as the charming Charley Dalrymple, attracted a Scottish lassie, Mary Liptrap.

Mike Skibbe as Tommy sang "Almost Like Being In Love" to his captivated girl, Debbie Johnson.

Dressed to the "kilt" were cast members Steve Monz, Scott Fauth, and also LuAnne Porter.

Musicians recreate Brigadoon's highland mood

The Scottish highlands provided the background for this year's fanciful Broadway musical, Brigadoon. A mythical town returns after a hundred years to set the stage for a romance between a lassie and an American hunter. Complications arise, for the town is doomed to oblivion for another hundred years. But the love between Fiona and Tommy saves the town and allows it to live forever. The hard work that went into the production can be attributed to the cast, the crew, and the orchestra. Heading the cast were Steve Miller and Mike Skibbe as Tommy; and Debbie Johnson and Cathy Cox as Fiona. The orchestra lent authenticity with the original Broadway score.

Perfecting their highland jig were dance chorus members, including Judy Iwata and Sally McAuliff.

Singers combine work with pleasure

Girls' Glee, the largest girls vocal group, selected their participants according to individual talent shown in Girls' Chorus, while Boys' Chorus was opened to all boys who were interested in singing and learning the fundamentals of music. Boys showing incentive and a little talent for the music were asked to return to the music department to be in the Concert Choir.

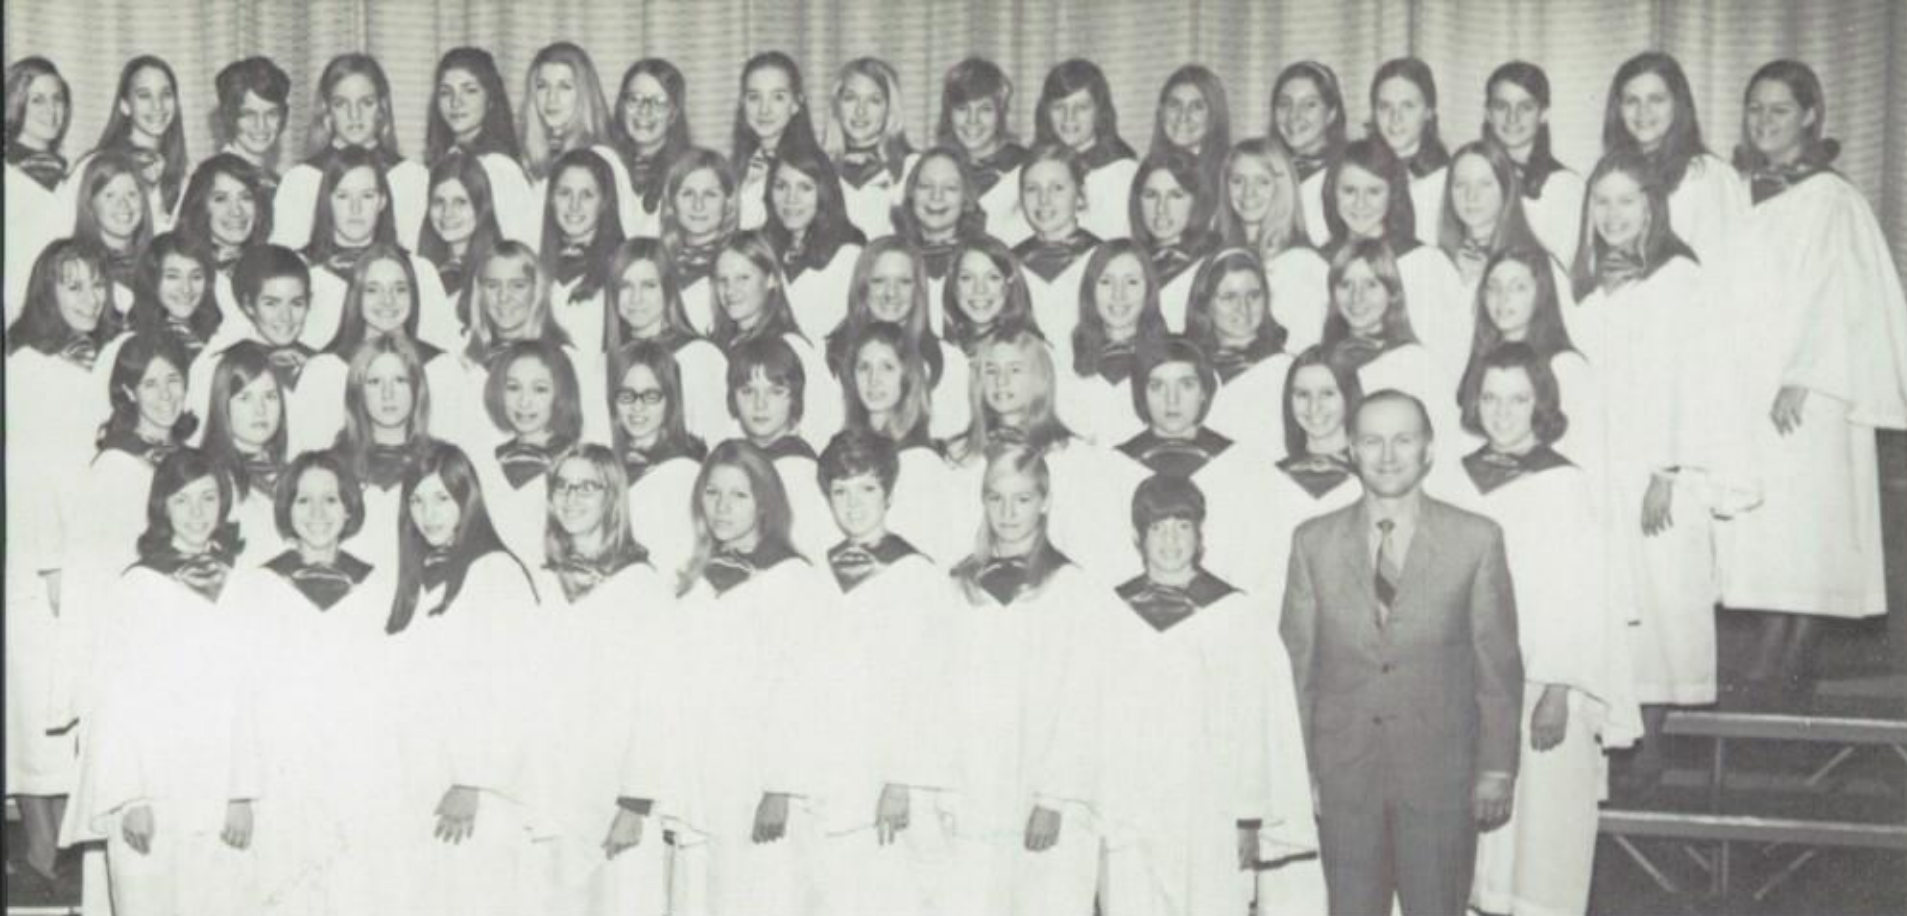

Junior and senior girls in Treble Choir combined hard work and pleasure during rehearsals and performances. Mr. Flechsig encouraged the girls to make their best effort toward singing perfection. The effect was that the members were met by appreciative audiences at both Spring and Fall concerts.

Concert Orchestra's achievements were impressive and almost incredible. The year's accomplishments came in the form of three victorious concerts and the popular production of Brigadoon. Pride, an orchestra trademark, was instilled by soloists Chuck Brenner and Gwen Kettelson, who played concertos at the Spring concert.

It is impossible to overestimate the value of Stage Band, an essential part of V-Show adding a special highlight this year with a solo number by Kerry Huebner. And thanks to them, assemblies were entertaining. Diligent rehearsing paid off in a great beat and sound.

The Girls' Glee Ensemble found their practices to be a musically enlightening experience. Delighted audiences at various concerts made their work worthwhile.

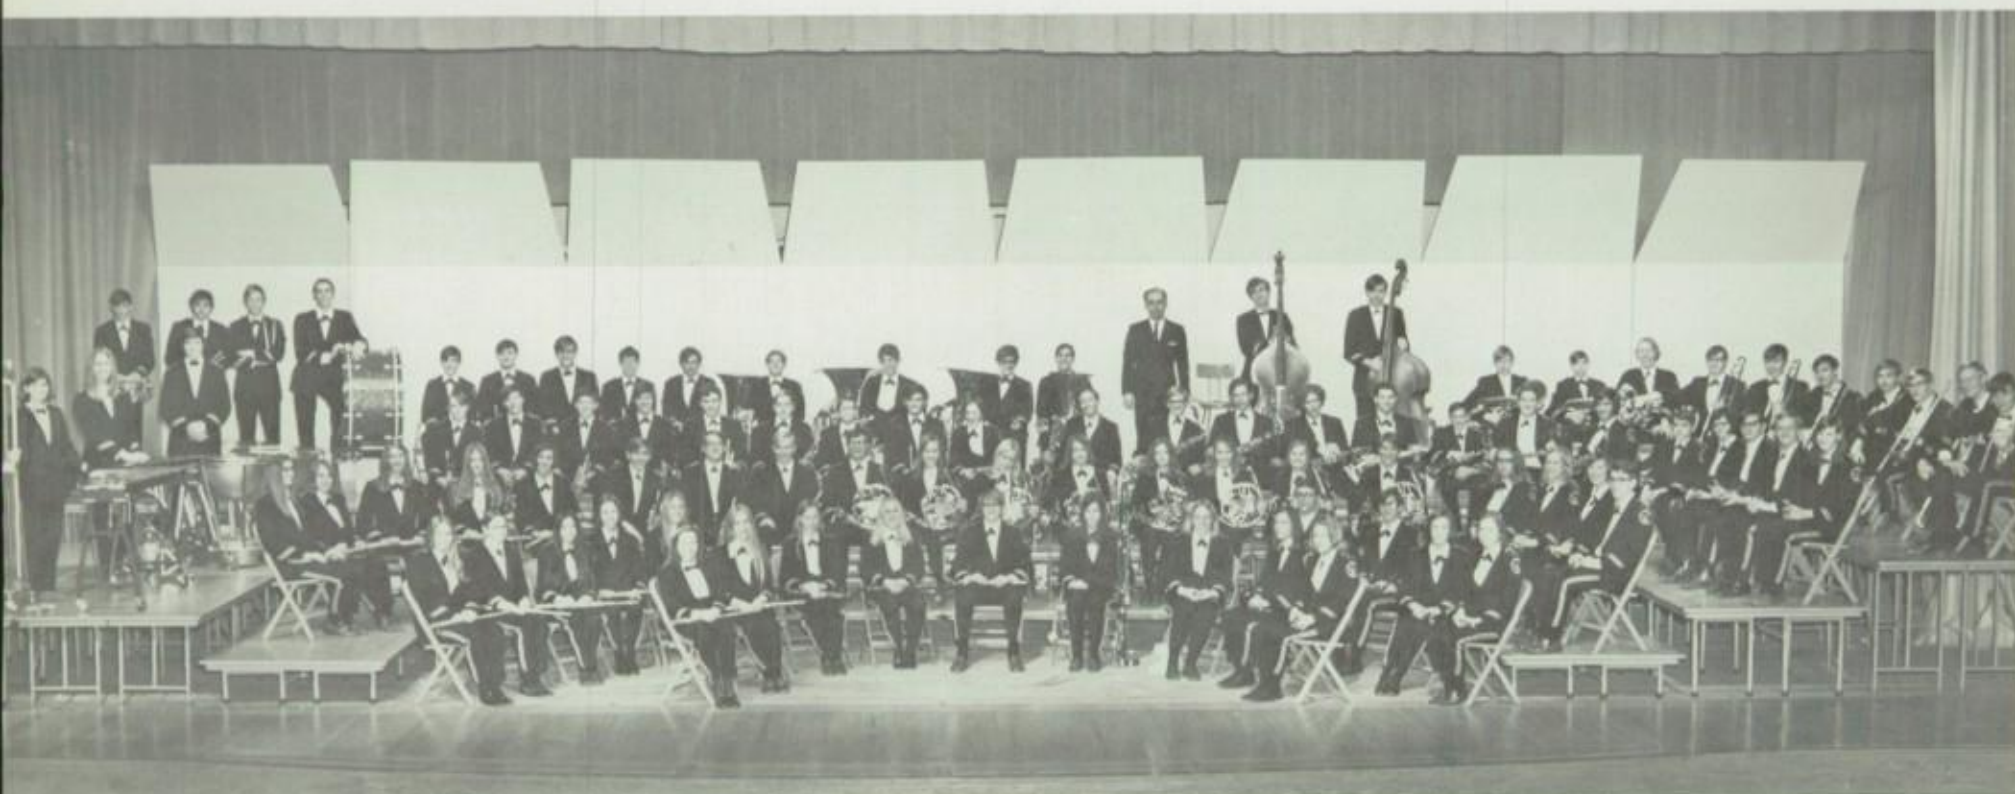

Musicians find time for fun

With spirit and hard work ranking high in the Concert Choir, the Tenors Are Sharp of America sponsored several athletic events against the Bases. The Tenors had an uncanny sense of losing until this year's basketball game, when the Bell's Bombers beat the Bases 48-42. Vocal wise, this was one of the best choirs in South's history. Chosen from the Concert Choir, the boys of the Boy's Ensemble sang for diversified groups and were warmly accepted. Often the boys would join with the Girls' Ensemble, producing harmonious concerts.

Concert Band members, led by Mr. McLean, enjoyed the year by working on two concerts, Homecoming festivities, and special participation in Northwestern University's Homecoming parade and half-time at a Northern Illinois University football game.

Council stresses more student involvement

Student Council stressed the idea of greater student involvement in school government. To encourage interest in elections, because of the possible eighteen year old vote in Illinois, the Student Council acquired several voting machines. Results showed that there was a larger voting turn out this year than in any previous years. Also contributing to student interest was the Segal-Schwall concert, which turned out to be a big success, with over a thousand students attending.

Eyrie stresses organization and creativity

Assistants: Top: Dave Tyska, Debbie Roberts, Diane Brunetti and Seated: Patricia Bak.

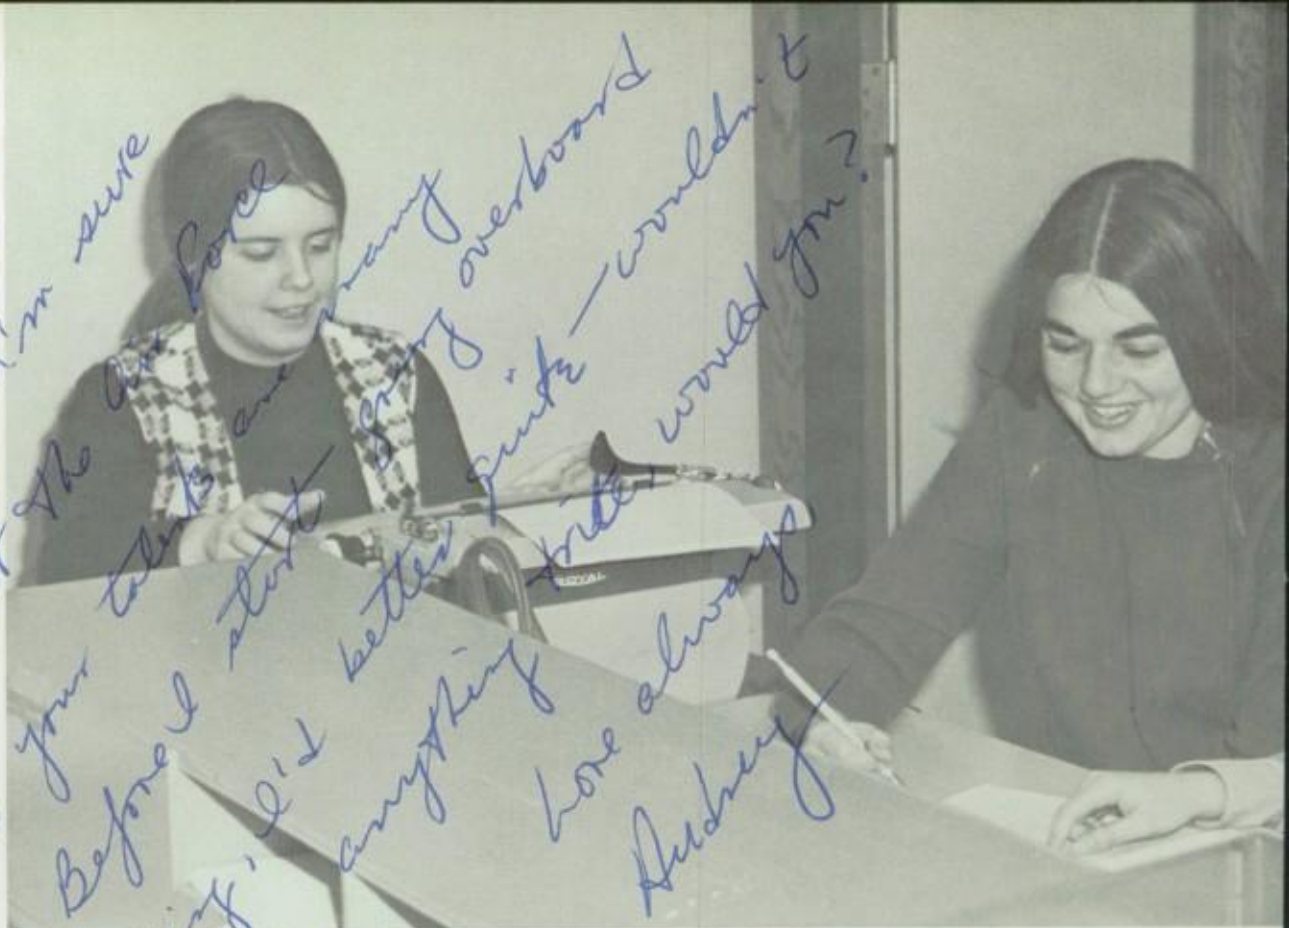

Organization was the key work for all the Eyrie staff members this year, as they drove themselves hard to meet each deadline with photos, layouts, ID's, and copy. With new methods of classification and regulation, the editors could carefully check and approve each proposed entry. As a result, the assistants could easily rotate to help the various section editors, learning the techniques involved in each of the areas of yearbook publications. The most helpful addition to the staff was Mike Charewicz, Eyrie's photographer. As Beth Timme, editor, said before the final deadline, "What would we have done without Mike?" Certainly his pictures helped record the year at South.

Dear Phil,
 you have no idea
 what a year in Creative Writing has been like for me. You have been one of the few people to add VARIETY and excitement to my senior year at Maine South. I'm sure you'll do alright at the law academy since your talents are and varied. Before I start to write this thing, I'd better write anything better than
 I would you?

The Southwords staff learned through experience rather than criticism, with self discipline being a necessity. Each reporter learned to work in cooperation with others around him. Through the newspaper, staff members became more involved and aware of school events. They tackled the problems that a professional newspaper faces; meeting deadlines and deciphering truth from rumor. The staff was in a position which required them to look objectively at both administration and students and to judge both sides fairly. The entire staff experienced a certain pride with every issue that was produced, and all eagerly anticipated the reactions of their fellow students.

Behemoth becomes representative of talent

The Creative Writing Magazine office was the location of a conglomeration of literary talent during the judging and publication of The Valley of the Behemoth. Contributions to the magazine displayed a romantic trend this year, with an abundance of love poems. However, numerous science-fiction and war-protest pieces, as well as illustrations, balanced the Behemoth, and gave it a universal quality. The editors felt that the title coincided nicely with this year's arena play J.B., as Behemoth, a large hippopotomas, appears in the biblical text of the Book of Job.

Pep Club increases student spirit

The year began with its best foot forward as the Pep Club gave its annual Kick-Off dance "It's All In the Game." Queens and contest winners, all a part of Spirit Week, were highlighted at the spirit Dance. A new tradition was started when Pep Club members decorated the lockers of varsity team members to show that the school was behind them in their upcoming sports events. Pep Club helped to inform students about sports events by placing banners and sports calendars in each homeroom and in the cafeteria. Enthusiastic members worked to make Homecoming a success. After a week of diligent work, the members produced their float, "Dial M for Murder." The year ended with an awards banquet to honor all Pep Club members who supported the Hawks.

Service clubs inspire student awareness

Interact, Girls' Club and Boys' Club are major service clubs at South. Interact, an extension of the Rotary Club, purchased a playground item for a local park last year with the money they raised through rummage and taffy apple sales. This year Girls' Club operated under the new executive planning board. Board members organized functions and assigned the elected council members to carry out their ideas. One of their new ideas was to help Boys' Club decorate the gym for the Christmas formal, traditionally sponsored solely by the Boys' Club. The boys did not seem to mind though, and they reciprocated by helping Girls' Club around Valentine's Day with the annual Girls' Choice Dance. All three of these clubs furnished guides for Open Houses and Adult Evening School.

Language clubs take cultural approach

The language clubs opened new areas of concentration to students interested in pursuing their language beyond the classroom. Participation in picnics, dinners, and parties gave members of the German Club insight into the customs of that country. The French Club enriched student knowledge through visits to French restaurants and movies. Among other events, Latin Club sponsored Saturnalia, a December festival. The desire to learn Italian through combined study and recreation was the main requirement for Italian Club members. A Christmas party with Spanish trimmings was planned by the Spanish Club, while the Russian Club visited several traveling ballets and circuses from the Soviet Union. All clubs felt that they could better understand their language by observing the country's cultural achievements.

Athletic clubs gain more popularity

Cavalier Officers: Irene Wojtczak, Secretary-Treasurer; Miss O'Connor; Nea Trefonas, President.

Concentration on sports and teaching methods was the goal of some organizations this year. Members of the Weight Lifting Club spent some of their free time strengthening their bodies on the weight lifting machine for further excellence in sports. Ski Club members, 300 strong, met once a month to discuss various ski trips to resorts such as Alpine Valley. Some of them enjoyed learning the fundamentals of skiing, while others were able to work on improving their skills. Miss O'Connor sponsored the Cavaliers, alias the Maine South Riding Club. Each member learned about the art of horse-back riding and was able to practice weekly. Among the major events were the Banquet, held in the spring, and the annual Horse Show, at which time members had a chance to exhibit their knowledge. The members of FTA, Future Teachers of America, were taught modern methods of teaching, which will be valuable in their future experiences as instructors. The thirty students met twice a month, attempting by the exchange of ideas to improve teaching abilities.

Many clubs center around hobbies

Several clubs gave students opportunities to share their hobby or interest with others. The Biology Club was active throughout the year and abounded in achievements. Among other functions, they sponsored a trip to the Milwaukee Zoo and an ecology lecture. The Rocket Club was concerned with operations and improvements of modern-day space craft. Chess Club engaged often in many intriguing matches in which skill and patience usually determined the victor. The Coin Club was interested in auctioning, trading, buying, and preserving valuable coins, while the Computer Club dealt with the operations of modern computers and enjoyed learning to construct programs which would answer complicated programs. In all, the clubs helped students with similar interests get together.

Besides these activities, the four clubs joined together for an aesthetic experience by making a visit to the House on the Rock. They found that every room was designed in an unusual and creative way. Also on this trip, the members of the four clubs stopped at the Frank Lloyd Wright School. By joining together on this trip, the clubs were able to compare their interests with those of members in other organizations and to learn from the rest of the people.

Clubs make efforts to communicate

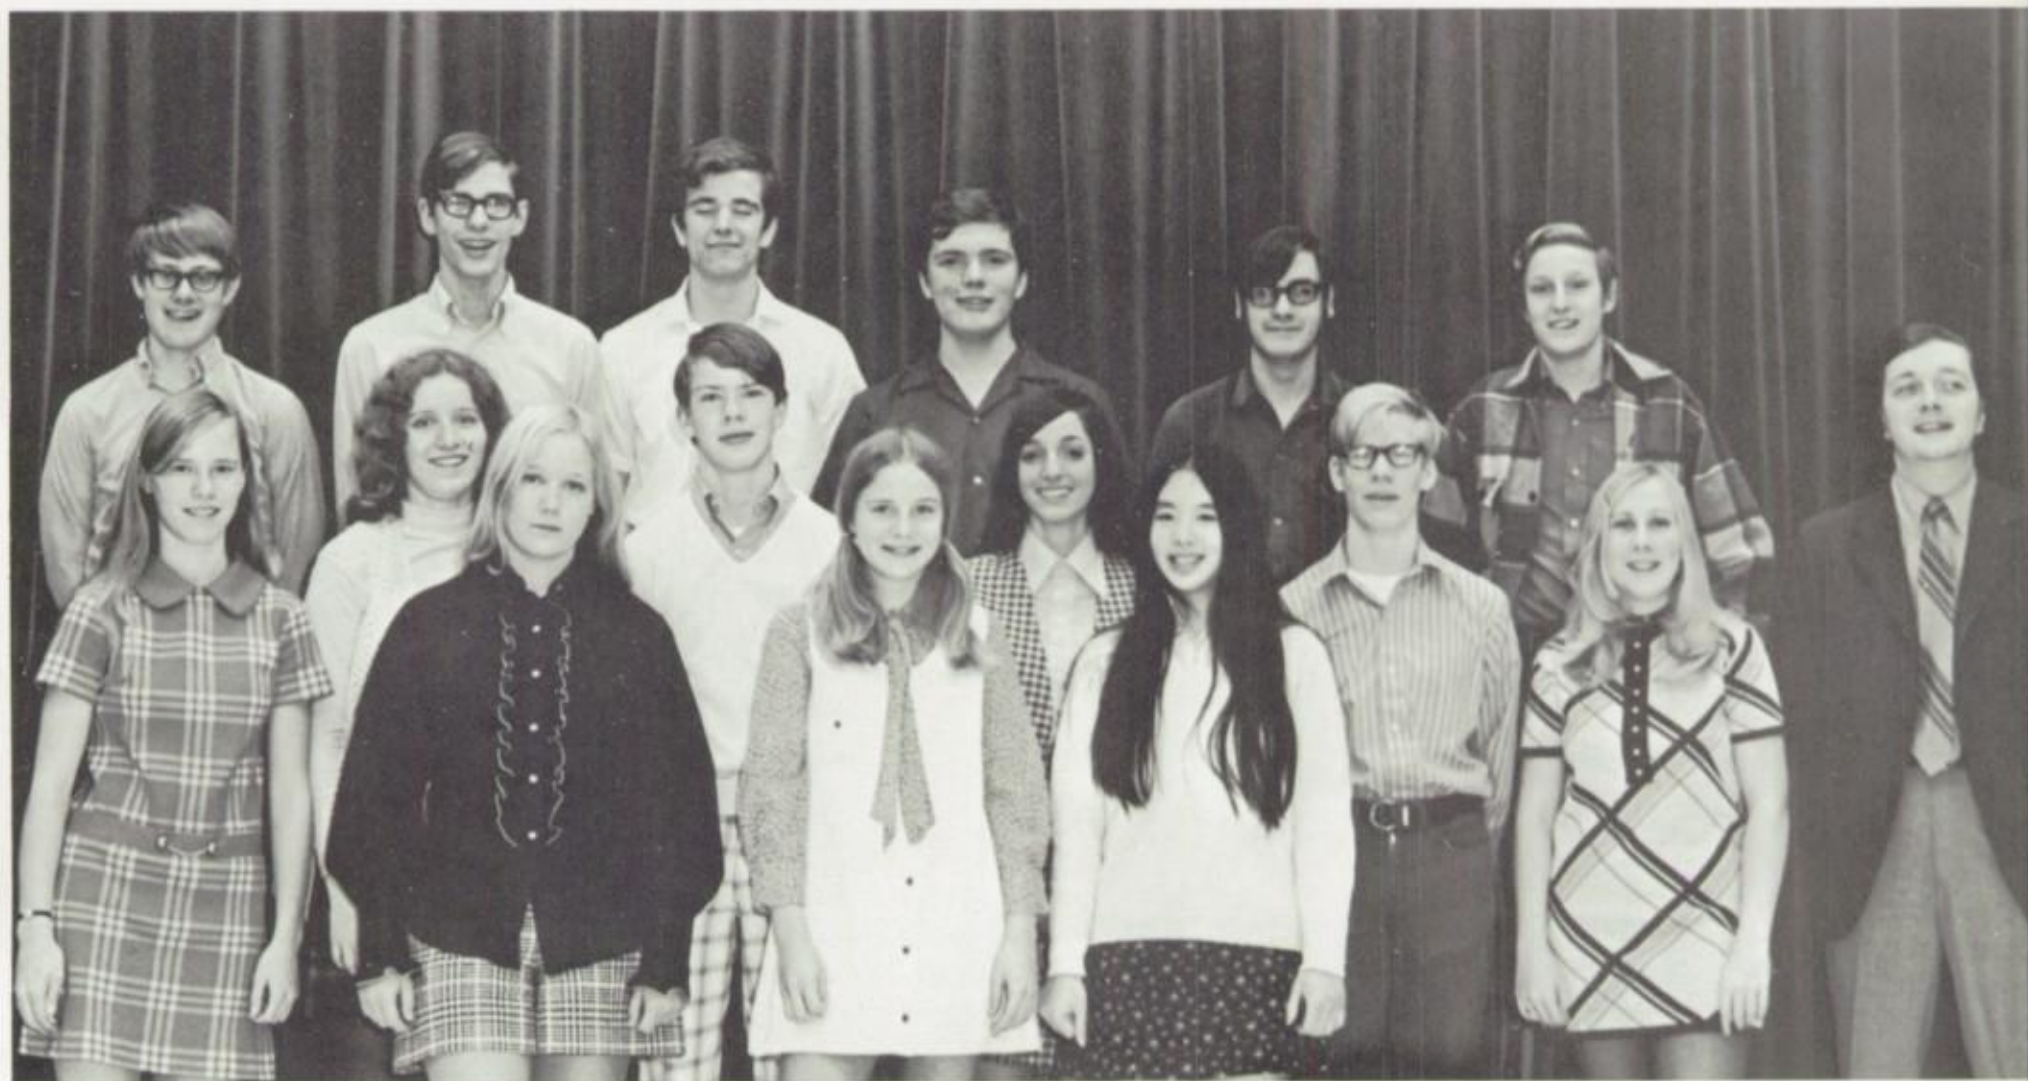

Communication was the concern of several of South's clubs this year. Using different media, students participated in a constructive exchange of ideas. Maine's radio station, WMTH, boasting a staff of sixty this year, took charge of many of the station's programs, broadcasting such events as football and basketball games and concerts. Another facet of the communications field was represented by the Debate Club, which competed at local tournaments on Saturdays throughout the year. Film Society offered to its members award-winning feature length movies. Contest Speakers contributed their oratory talents in presenting their ideas to others by traveling throughout the area in competition with other schools. These clubs, concerned with sharing problems and ideas, offered students the opportunity to discuss ideas.

Honor Society adds new initiates

Designed to recognize outstanding students, the National Honor Society remained as one of the highest ranking honoraries at Maine South. Honor Society rules state that the group may initiate up to five percent of the junior class and up to fifteen percent of the senior class. In addition, to be elected in their junior year, students must have a record of all A and B semester grades, while seniors must have a B average. Grades, however, are not the only requirement for membership. The judges, faculty members from Maine South, also considered the candidates' service, leadership, and character.

Initiates were honored at an afternoon tea and were given their awards at a banquet where State Representative Robert S. Juckett spoke to the group.

Honorary groups stress helping others

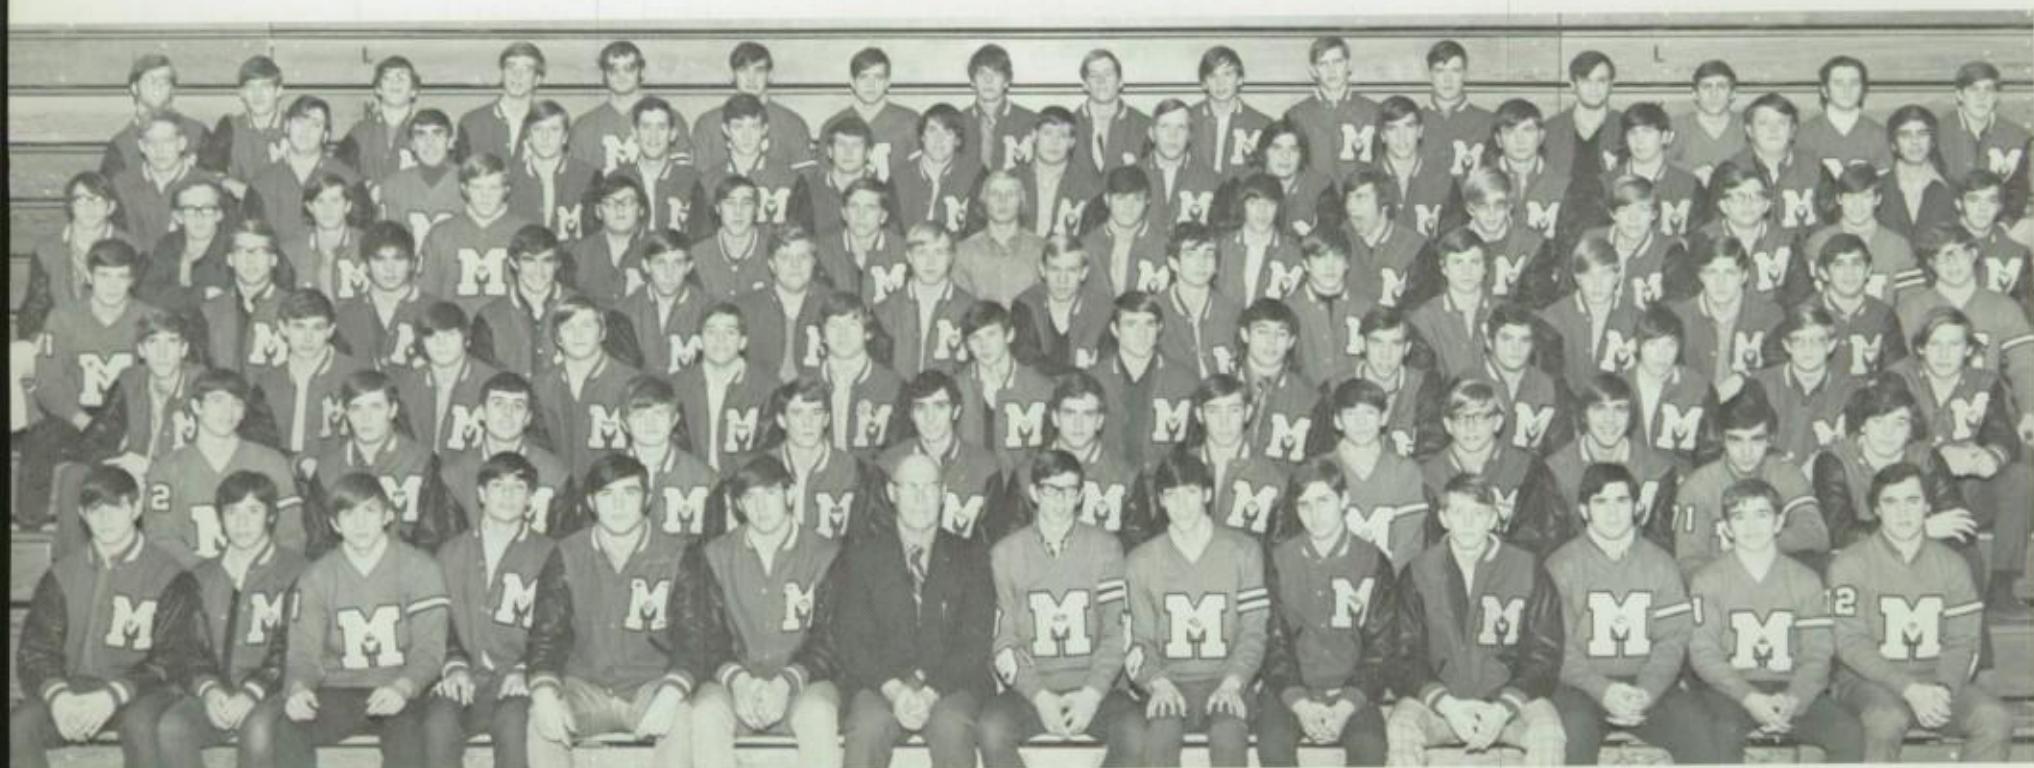

This year several of the honorary clubs stressed helping others through the various activities that they sponsored. The Brotherhood Society, consisting of students chosen for outstanding contributions toward creating good will among students, held a project to raise money for Gateway House, a rehabilitation center for drug addicts. A Share the Fare money drive was conducted by A.F.S. to help pay the way for future students from abroad.

M Club, along with their biannual initiations, sponsored a game between the faculty and the Texas Cowgirls, a professional girl's basketball team. Once again, the faculty whipped the M Club members in their yearly spectacle, the M Club - Faculty game. With the money raised through their candy drive, Tri M, sponsored by the music department, purchased an electric piano.

Honoraries recognize variety of interests

Students outstanding in various fields of interests were recognized by different honor societies. One of the most active, Thespian Society, acknowledged students who had put in a certain amount of time on any of the annual drama productions at Maine South. This included both behind stage, crewwork, and the actual time put in on acting. The National Forensic League recognized some of our best speech students here at South who had won honors either on the Debate squad or in Contest Speakers. Outstanding work on any of South's recognized publications and ranking in the upper third of their class were the two principle requirements for Quill and Scroll. Sigma Chi Sigma members were chosen on the basis of a high score on a reading test.

Honor students show scholastic abilities

As in previous years, Maine South has been represented by students showing outstanding performance in scholastic abilities. This year our It's Academic Team put forth all their efforts and consistently turned out excellent showings against competitors. Among other honorary awards, membership to the Historical Society required that a student carry an A average in history during his junior year. Science Seminar encouraged independent study for those above average pupils who wished to pursue their individual scientific interests. Students rating high on the important standardized tests were chosen as National Merit Finalists, allowing them to compete on a national level.

Brotherhood members, elected by their classmates, were given awards at an assembly.

Excellence attained by swim club

Entrance to the Marlin Swim Club was based on the form of certain strokes and the ability to perform synchronized moves. Miss Butler, who is the club's sponsor, worked hard with the girls to accomplish the perfection attained during their yearly show. After weeks of periodic practices, Odyssey in Sound was finally prepared to be displayed for an audience. As usual, the show was excellent, including several difficult stunts which were performed to music. Each act of the show proved the work and time which was put into it by Marlin.

Girls' teams provide competitive activities

This year the girls' teams, which are organized by the Girls' Recreation Association, grew largely in number. Besides the tennis, basketball, volleyball, and badminton teams, there were many other forms of sports activity which were added. The speed swim team and the gymnastics team are only two examples of the expansion seen in the field of girls' sports at South. Each of these areas helped to develop the skills for a girl in a particular sport, and allowed her to participate in the activity of her choice.

GRA offers variety of activities

The Girls Recreation Association is a branch of the physical education department which helps to organize extracurricular activities for sports-minded girls. They sponsored such events as the Howdy Playnight, which helped girls to get acquainted with each other, and the Spring Awards Banquet, which honored girls with outstanding contributions to sports and to the physical education department as a whole.

Intramural volleyball, basketball, and softball were also planned by the G.R.A. Board, under the presidency of Mary Hester. The plans made by G.R.A. gave many girls the chance to become involved in team sports, to perfect their individual skills, or simply to have a good time. All of the activities that were organized by this association took time and were greatly appreciated by all who took part.

Hawkettes continue precision dancing traditions

This school year the Hawkettes performed in front of South's fans with their usual perfection. They radiated a feeling of liveliness at football and basketball games, performing creatively for the audience during their half-time activities. The perfection which was reached by this dance organization is due to the direction of Miss Bobrich, one of South's biology teachers. The Hawkettes presented their precision numbers at games and assemblies throughout the year. The Pom-Pon squad even traveled to such places as Northern Illinois to perform.

Sue Hardin demonstrated the excellent form that was common during the squad's half-time performance.

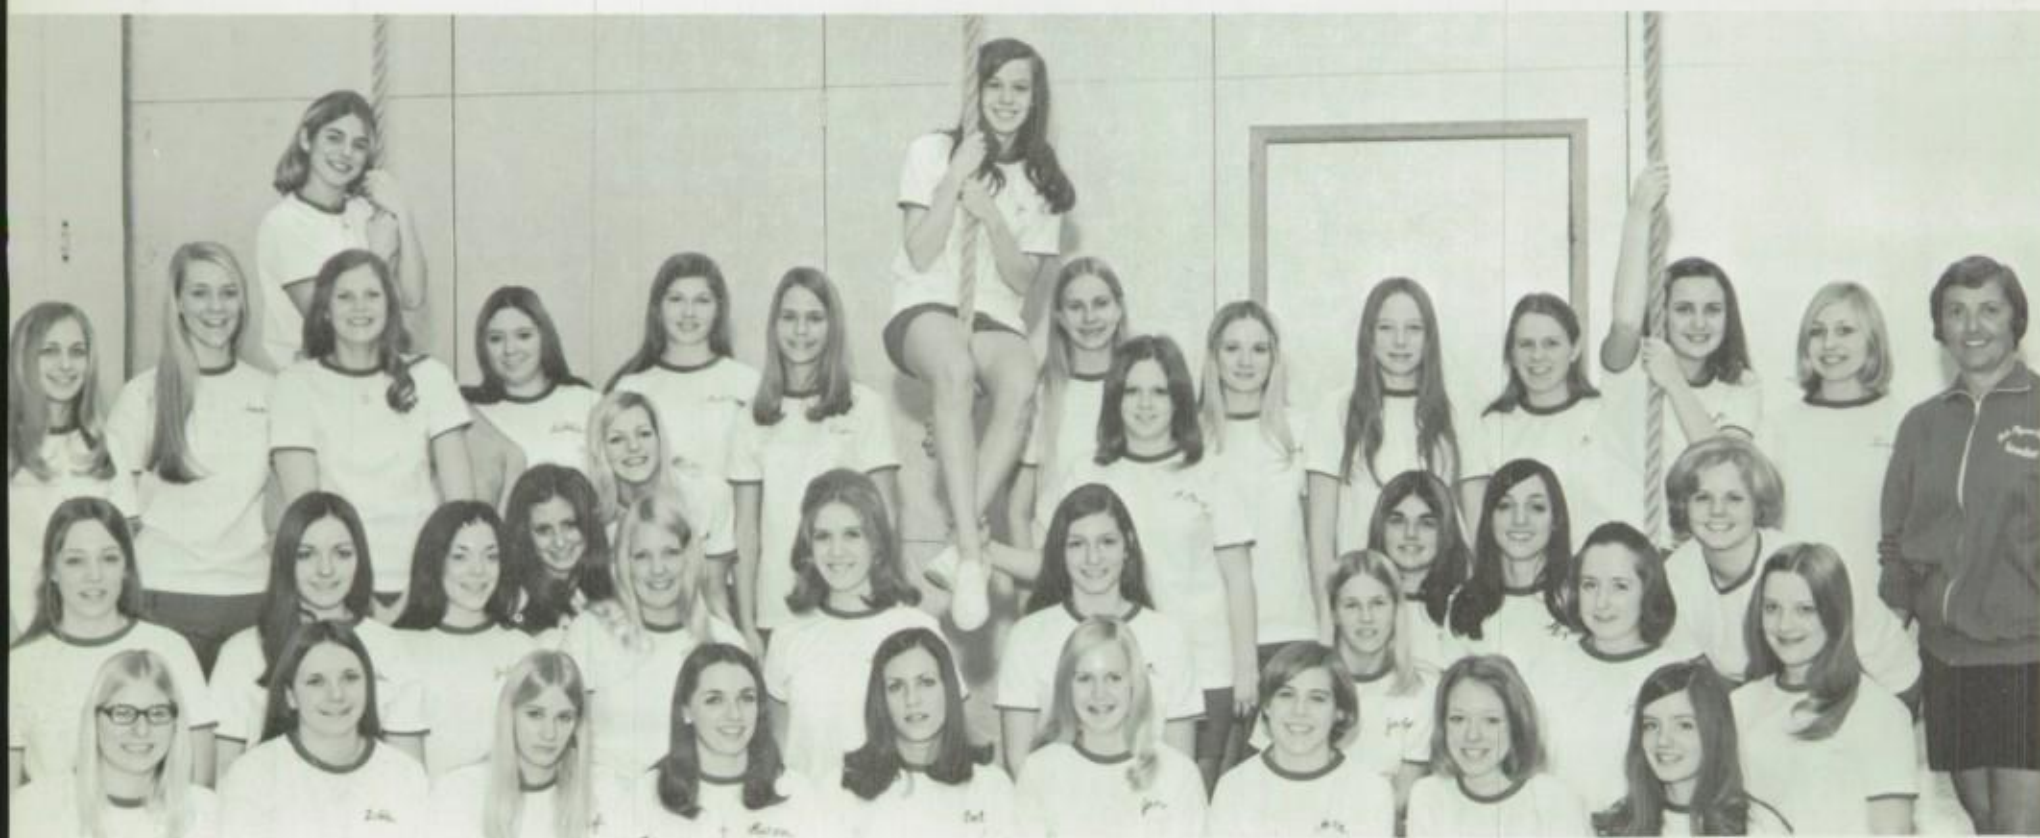

Junior Senior Leaders assist teachers

The Junior-Senior Leader Program at South is one which stresses the teaching abilities to be found in girls of high school age. After a year of training as juniors, under the guidance of Miss Pierce, the girls are prepared to help teach in a regular gym class. The leaders learn the techniques of team and individual sports, and employ this knowledge to assist girls in other classes. Their duties are the same as those of the physical education instructors, who guide the leaders throughout the year. All of these aspects make this program an important one.

Due to their many hours of hard practice, the cheerleaders found it easy to display pep and enthusiasm during all of the games. Under the leadership of Miss Goll, the girls encouraged the teams on to many of South's victories.

This year the varsity squad introduced our basketball team with skillfully done aerals, aided only by the mini-trampoline. This is a very difficult stunt to perform and it took the girls a long time to perfect it for the games.

Through the spirit generated by all of our cheerleading squads, opposing schools were able to get a glimpse of the vivacity and vigor which existed at all of our sports events. All of South's cheerleaders worked together to get the crowds involved at every one of the games.

Varsity strength grows through teamwork

Improving on last year's records in a continued fight for perfection, Coach Schmidt and his hard-working assistants led our strong-willed varsity throughout the season. Joe Zdeb, Most Valuable Player, half-back, and the All-State Honorable Mention, provided a very strong part of the important team work that drove the players to victories. A three-way co-captainship was held by Bill Jackson and Ed Benson, Guards; and Tom Mattick, tackle. These players helped to form an extremely fast team with a strong defense that downed many unwary conference competitors. An overwhelming unity of spirit brought the team from a few heart-breaking defeats to some well-deserved triumphs. Constant practice to improve weak points paid off in important wins.

Head varsity football coach Bob Schmidt pondered the problems of Hawk football strategy.

JV and sophs crush opponents

The Junior Varsity football team played consistently well throughout the season. Although they performed for small crowds, they still managed to keep up the winning tradition of Maine South. Winning five games and losing only two, the JV squad never was badly beaten and often trounced their opponents, as in the Niles North game, with a score of 55-0. Coached by Mr. Hopkins, they can now look forward to next year and to a winning varsity.

The Sophomore team was coached by Mr. Walters and Mr. Sullins. Playing before varsity, the soph gridgers were often entangled in exciting, close games. Fighting hard all year, they closed the season with two wins, four losses and one tie. Led by MVP Jim Gaydos and co-captains Steve Marvin and Dave Loria, every team member was a credit to South.

Freshman football teams progress rapidly

On the road to future championships were the freshman football teams, with such valuable players as Keith Skaathum on the A team and Gerald Pientka on the B team leading the way. The teams worked on new defensive techniques, paving the way for coming years of conference competition. Working together as a team, the freshmen capitalized on outstanding individual plays to win several important games throughout the season. They constantly worked on improving in rushing, passing, and blocking abilities, to insure an even better record next year. Coaches Ziemek and Kochalka were optimistic about the progress of the entire team, and hoped to see the freshmen with a good start on their way to varsity playing in the future. All in all, the freshmen did an exceptional job of getting accustomed to the competitive atmosphere of high school football.

Enthusiasm follows Cross Country runners

The varsity Cross Country team began a strong season with enthusiastic supporters of a highly competitive sport. Led by MVP Kevin Huffman and Captain Kelly Murphy, the sturdy team also terminated the year powerfully. Finishing with an 8 win, 2 loss record, Huffman and the rest of the juniors promise future excitement.

The sophomore squad followed the varsity, but in an even better fashion. Tom Wright, MVP, and Tom Strelka, Captain, consistently ran one-two in all meets, even breaking some course records. Freshman Dave Senf was also of value to the sophomores as he placed high in many meets. With these three boys leading the way on an excellent team, they won the conference and finished undefeated with a 14 win, 0 loss record.

Soph Harriers Tom Wright and Tom Strelka were again leading the way for other Hawk runners.

Varsity soccer makes valiant efforts

The Varsity Soccer team showed spirit and unity throughout the fall season. Often their games were highlighted with a sense of true fighting spirit and a real will to win. Despite a 3 win, 11 loss record, players built individual skill and many games showed evidence of excellence, as against LaGrange when a valiant effort fell short by only one goal. MVP Vaughn Hapeman and Captain Donn Jonswald led a team of true champions.

The sophomore team followed the Varsity in spirit, but surpassed them in record. Led by MVP Bill Harbeck, who played sensationally in all games, and Captain Rick Lenke, they showed promise by finishing the season with a 7 win, 5 loss record. MVP Jim Carlson and Captain Albert Haas led the freshman team to a 1-6 record.

Junior Jeff Cragg tried to maneuver the ball and spot an open teammate at the same time.

Russ Hylen stretched every muscle in an effort to tip the ball to South instead of Niles West.

Varsity basketball earns conference title

The varsity cagers entertained audiences with exciting basketball action. Before a background of cheering fans, they gained the coveted conference co-championship. During the conference season, the players whipped rival Maine West twice in heated contests. In regional play, they beat West Leyden in the first game, but were downed by St. Pat's by only four points. The team boasted two All-Conference players: Mike Bonk, guard, and the team's Most Valuable Player; and Jerry Jones, the varsity's sophomore forward. Winning an all-conference Honorable Mention was Russ Hylen, also a forward. Under the captainship of Roger Sauter, the team finished with a 12-2 Central Suburban League record.

While dribbling, Dave Jacobson eyed Niles West with caution before passing to a fellow cager.

JV and sophs go undefeated

It is unusual for a school to boast one undefeated team, but this year Maine South was entitled to two, as both the sophomore and junior varsity squads were spared from defeat. The JV team, coached by Mr. Sullins, finished at 19-0, as MVP Tom Spicer and co-captains Chris Barcal and Greg Ciezadlo played their positions in an outstanding manner all season. Tom Schmelzer and Rick Kucera also did well.

The second undefeated team at South, one of the top soph teams in the area, was the fantastic sophomore team which over a two year span ran up a perfect 40 win - 0 loss record. The easy conference champs were led by captain Tony Reibel, but the entire team was chosen for MVP. This is consistent with the team efforts of each player working for the benefit of the team rather than for himself.

Mike Bonk caught the visitors sleeping to add two more big ones to the mighty Hawk's score.

During the sophomore game, Bob Westman strained to out jump the tall opposition.

Fans from both teams marveled at the accuracy of the long shot taken by senior Roger Sauter.

Jerry Jones used a well-aimed long shot to prove he was needed as the only sophomore on varsity.

Russ Hylen knew height was not necessarily the surest way to control the ball during a jump.

Both frosh teams take conference

With nineteen season wins, the Frosh A team tied South's freshman win record. They took the conference with an amazing 16-0 record, with Most Valuable Player Tim Bopp and Captain Dave Patterson leading the way. The leading rebounders were Dave Patterson, Bob McCarthy, and Pete Schmelzer, and the leading scorer was Tim Bopp. All four boys scored over one hundred points during the season.

The Frosh B team was also the conference champs, with a 13-3 record. Outstanding were Denny Kladis, the team's Most Valuable Player, and Ed Lannon, the team's captain.

Fencers become first state champions

Guided by a rookie young coach, Dave Jones, the fencers of Maine South became the first state champions our school has known. Former state champ Dave Littell performed the feat again and Bob Young placed fifth as the team dominated the tournament with 78 points as compared to only 45 for second place Marshall. The fencers truly had an excellent season, winning 11 of their meets while losing only 1, that being to Notre Dame, which was revengeed decisively through rematch.

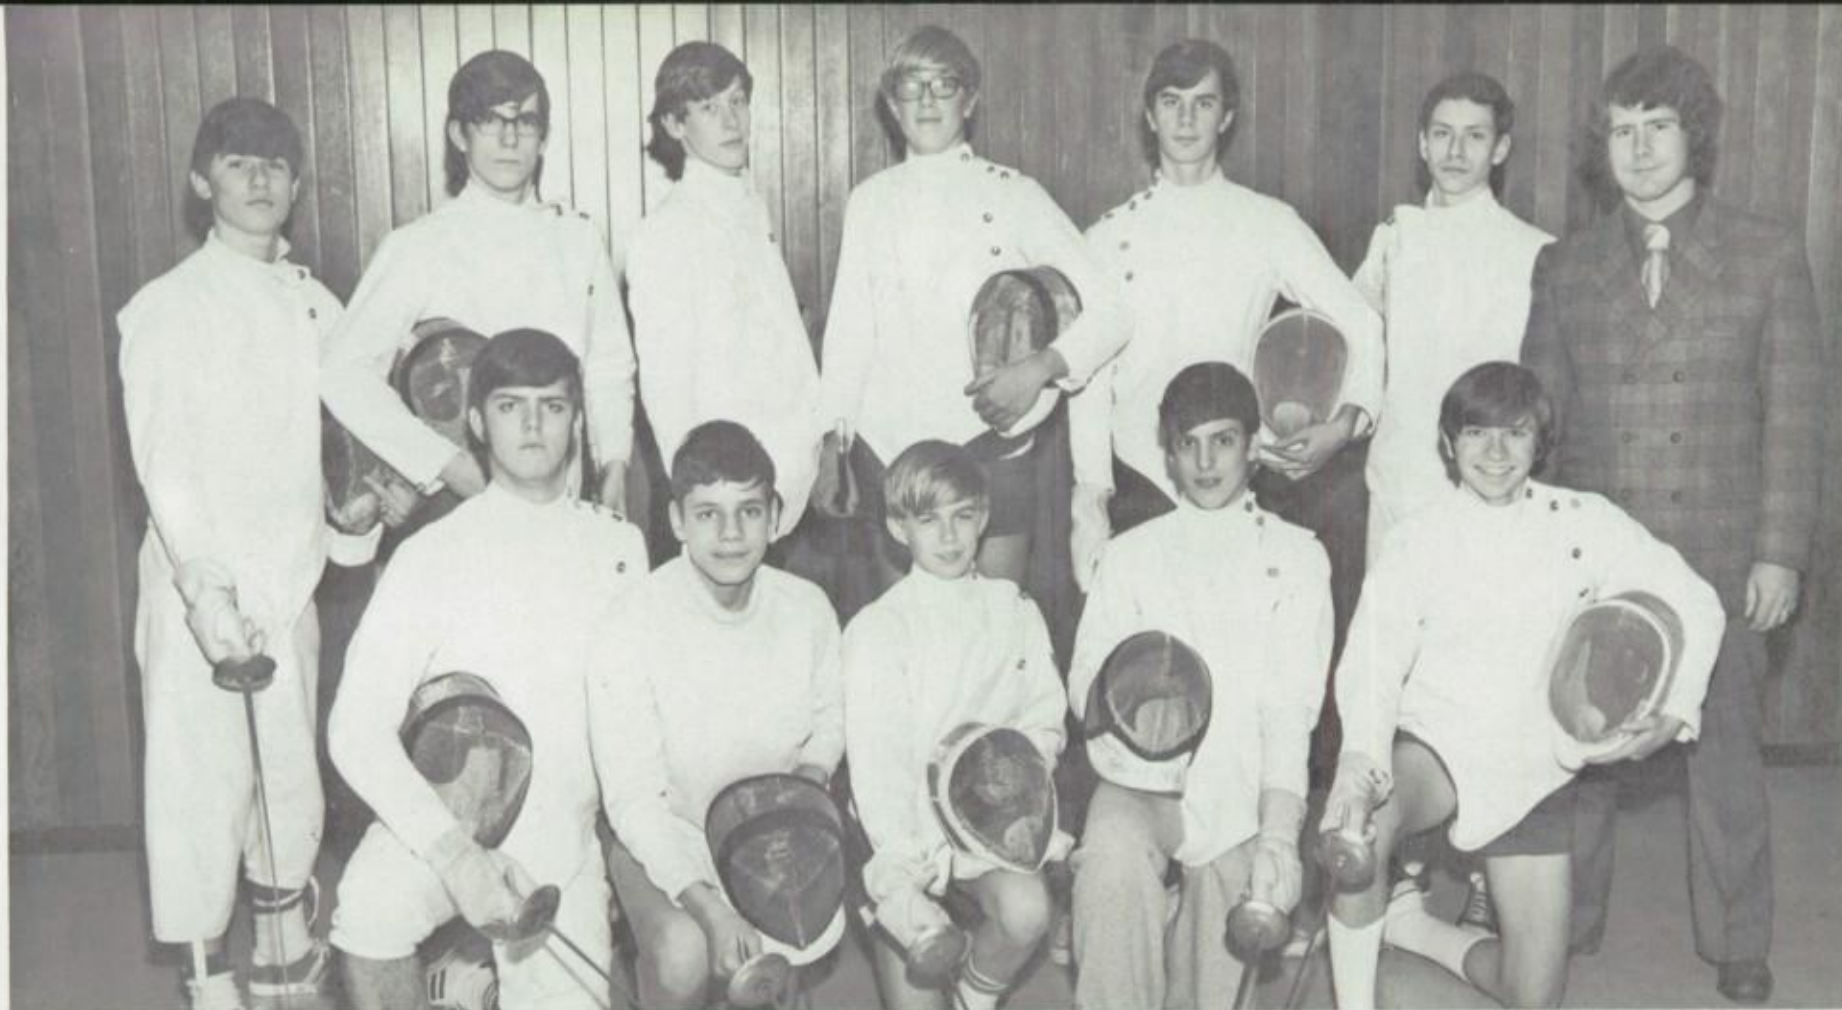

The frosh-soph fencers followed the varsity in excellent style, winning 7 of their 8 meets. Again, the only loss was to Notre Dame, without any later rematch.

Bob Young's fast touch against John Duncan added points to the five necessary for winning a match.

Varsity gymnasts boast outstanding records

Although the 1971 Varsity Gymnastics team placed only fourth in the conference with a 12 win — 3 loss record, they took second in district meets, fifth in sectional contests, and fifteenth in state competition. In determining who would compete in each contest, the team had eleven boys qualify for sectionals and four members for State.

Outstanding gymnasts included Steve Olsen, captain, who was the conference champion on the trampoline and also took third in the state finals; and Most Valuable Player Dirk Martin, who beat the competition with an outstanding parallel bar routine, to take the Thornridge Invitational Championship.

Sophomore Rich Behnke was on the rings for Maine South doing his best with a handstand.

Sophomore Glen Farney was on the parallel bars doing a near perfect handstand at a Hawk meet.

Frosh-Soph gymnasts build for future

The sophomore gymnastics team showed promise and ability throughout the long season despite finishing their campaign with a 3 win 4 loss record. Just a few of the many bright spots for this squad were MVP Pat Donovan and Glenn Farney, who performed well on the high-bar, and Dane Roth in free exercise. These fine athletes did well throughout the season.

The frosh team also won 3 games and lost 4 as they reaped the benefits of first year experience which will help each of them in future years. Mark Lundberg, MVP, and Tom Pattersen, Captain, were two team members who did very well.

Seniors stars of varsity wrestling

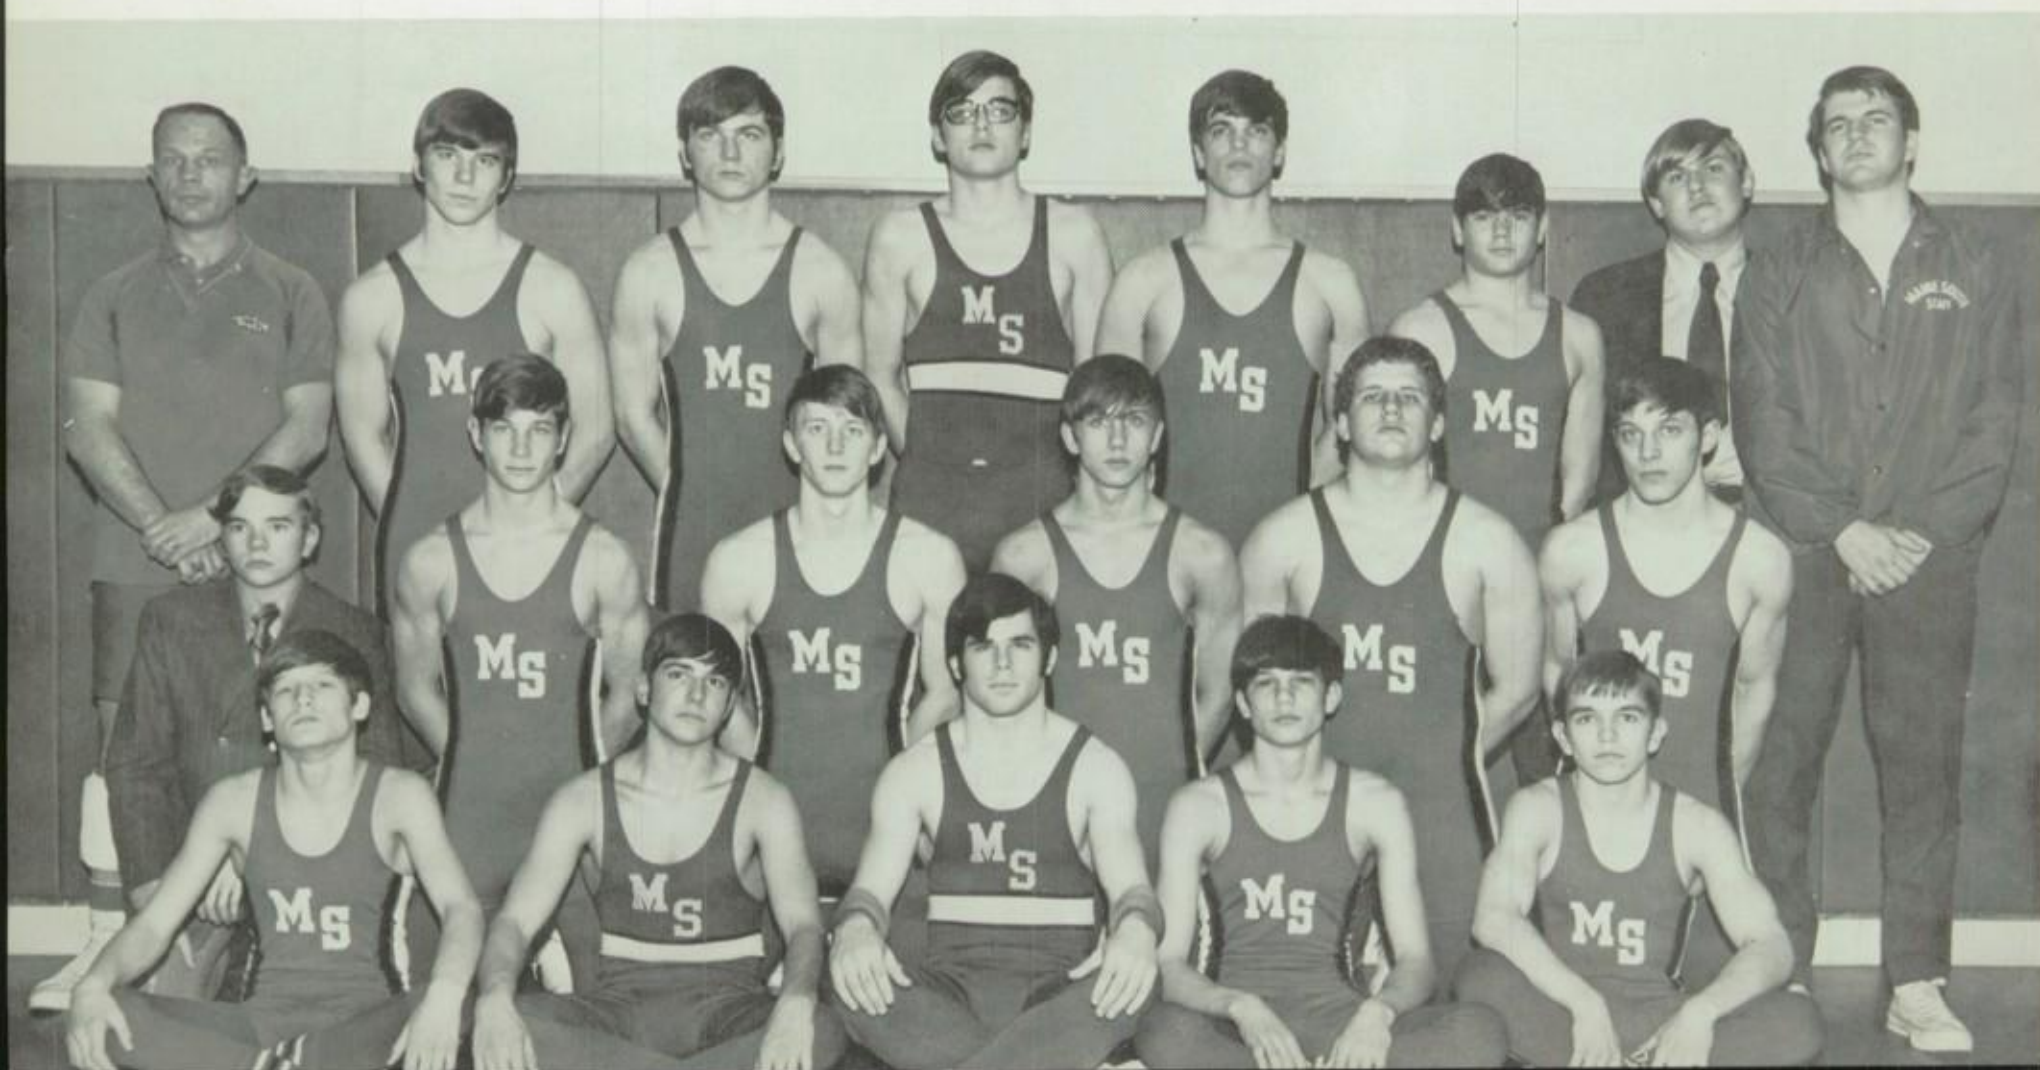

Varsity wrestling had a fairly good year considering that they lost several key performers from the year before. Because of this they had to bring up several inexperienced sophomores, all of them doing a fine job. But the stars of the team were all seniors. Led by MVP Tom Magas, all conference at 138 lbs., Larry Burton, undefeated in conference and who also made all conference at 145 lbs., and Scott Miller, who was second in district and who was also all-conference honorable mention were the bright spots of the team. Magas led the team in a host of categories. Among them were most take downs, most pins, and most wins. Tom will surely be a help to his college team. With the new sophomores gaining valuable experience this year, Coach Ziemek is going to have a fine team next year.

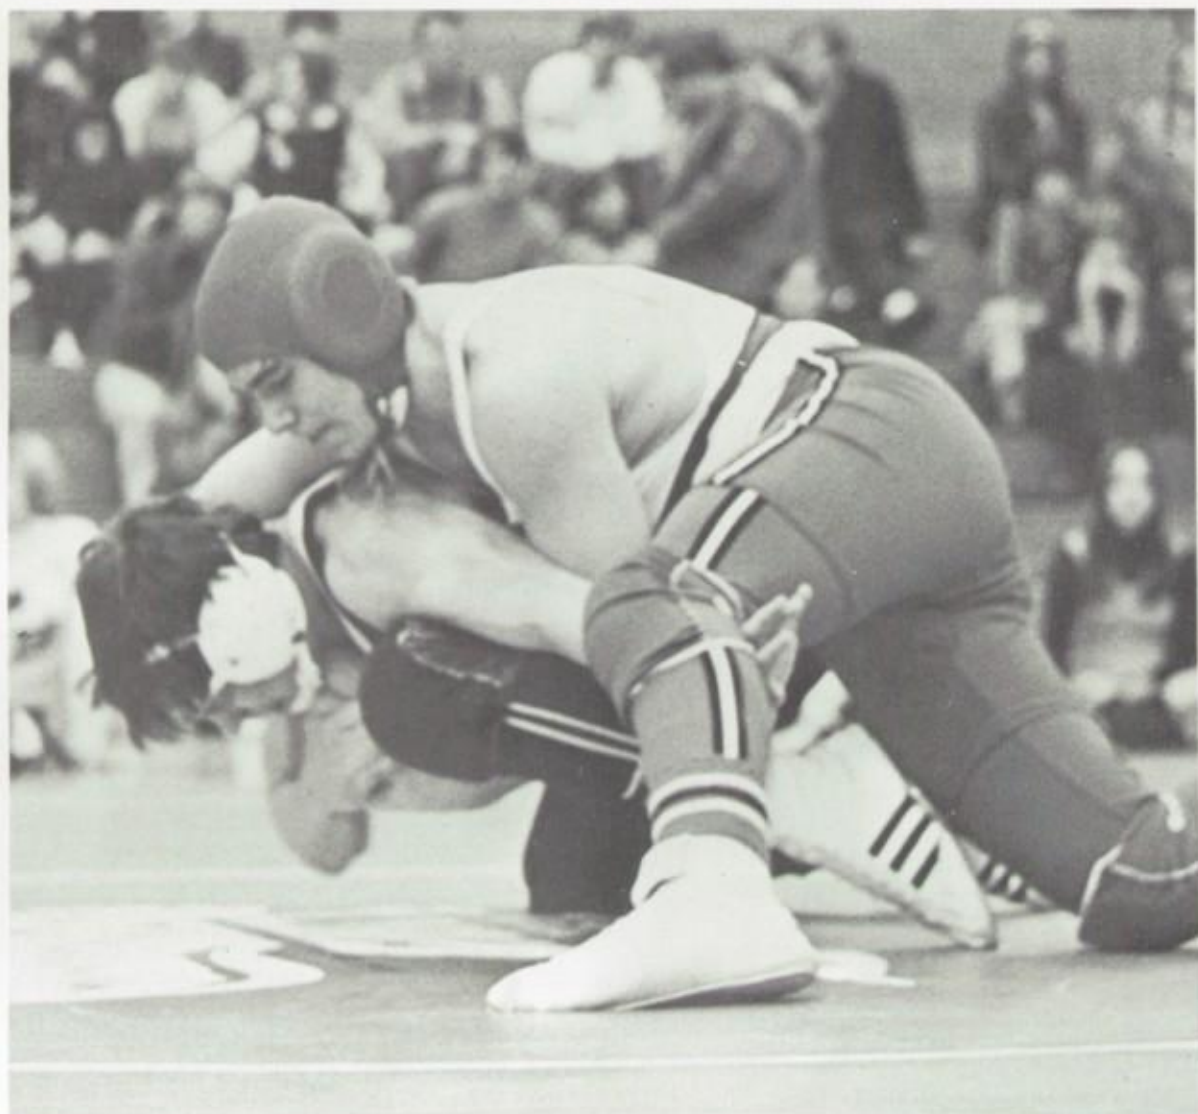

138 lb., Tom Magas pinned a St. Viator opponent which made him a Prospect Tournament Champion.

Frosh- soph wrestlers gain experience

Sophomore wrestling had a pretty dismal season since most of the better wrestlers were on the varsity. They had a record of w-10-2. However there were a few bright spots on the team. Led by MVP Mike Charewicz with a 19-2 record, and Ed Jahn with a 17-3-1 record, the team had some respect. Jahn and Gordon Rowley were elected co-captains.

The frosh wrestlers had an excellent team. For the year they were 14-1 and 8-0 in conference, good for first place. Led by MVP Keith Skaathan and Chuck Myer and Roger Burton as captains, the frosh defeated Maine East for the first time in five years. These boys, along with the sophomores, will keep up the winning tradition that Maine South has.

Led by MVP Norm Pussehl and co-captains Jim Curran and Craig Glass, they swam to a 9 win — 6 loss record. In gaining MVP honors, Norm Pussehl became district champion in the 50 yard freestyle and went on to take 12th place in state competition at Evanston. Another district champion, Ted Johnson, took 13th place in state in the 100 yard breaststroke. Others who participated in state competition were Mike Cesario in diving and Brad Kozie, who finished 11th in the 100 yard backstroke. During the season, 3 records fell in the 100 yard breaststroke, 400 free-style relay, and 1 meter diving events by fine swimmers.

Varsity baseball exhibits exciting action

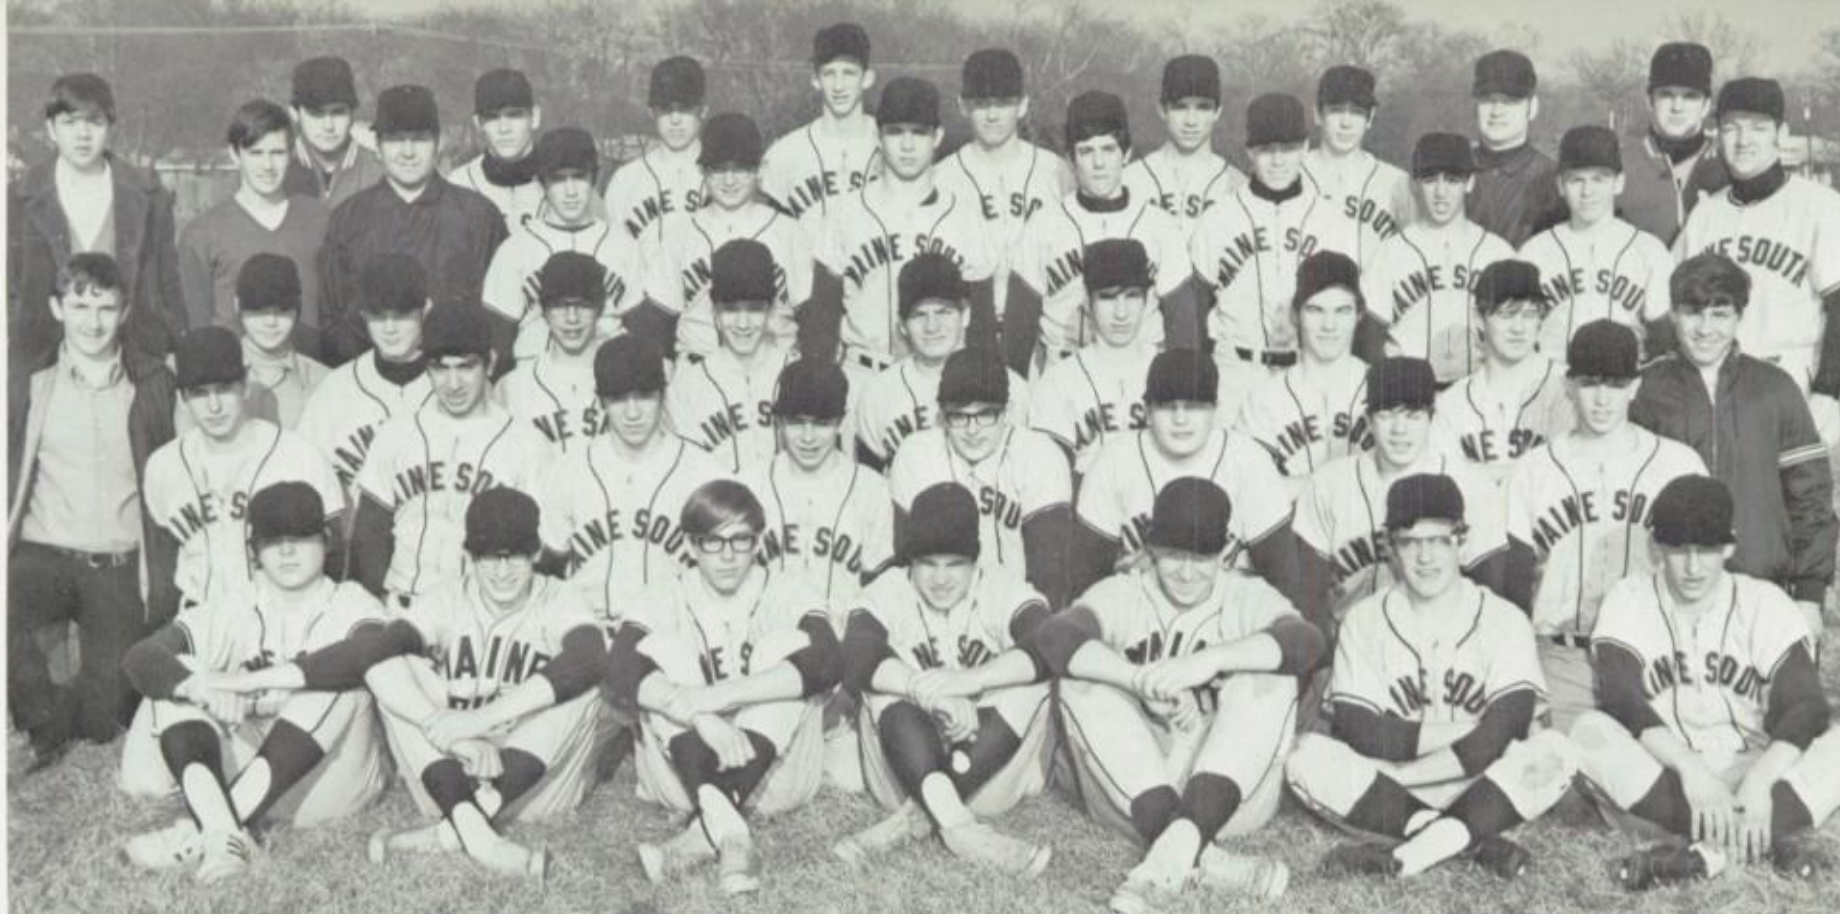

Maine South boasted a fine baseball team in 1970 with Coach Verber doing an excellent job in leading the team his rookie year. The team was led by the expert pitching of MVP Larry Teschner and Captain Pete Dumich. Maine South gained a victory over Holy Cross in the final game of the district tournament by a score of 6-2. Holy Cross at that time was ranked first in the state. The season ended with a third place conference finish and boasted three men on the all conference team. Two of them were seniors; Dan Calamari, an outfielder; and Larry Teschner, a pitcher. The other was a junior, Joe Zdeb, infielder. With six returning lettermen this year the team should be able to improve on their 12-7 record.

Tennis teams have promising future

Mr. Kent's 1970 varsity tennis team had a record of 9-5 which was good for a fourth place conference finish. Leading the way were MVP Dave Littell and Captain Alan Lauterbach. These two players, along with Larry Barr and Tom Klancnik, were a big factor in leading the team to a district win and a tenth place in the state meet.

The 1971 team is looking forward to a fine season this year with hopes of possibly winning the coveted conference crown. With the MVP of last year returning, the Hawk tennis team should be able to reach that important goal of theirs.

Meeting new people

Meeting new people can be a great experience for everyone involved. Learning another person's characteristics, his ideas, his opinions can help me to develop my own traits in relation to his. I can compare and contrast my own ideas and feelings and get a better understanding of others.

Sometimes just talking things over with someone else can be a real help. By listening to another viewpoint on my problem or idea, I can judge it more realistically. I can see the effect my opinion will have and also get some valuable insight into myself.

When much of my time is occupied by school, I am often relieved when a group of us can go to a game or have a gab session. Many of the tensions of schoolwork and grades dissolve in a group, where the main intention is just to have fun.

Students volunteer for useful services

Throughout South, many students utilized some of their free time in running the school smoothly. They volunteered their help in the busy library and in the Main, Attendance, and Personnel Offices. Also, students gave the nurses a hand in the health office, where they kept files or helped injured or ill students. The Audio-Visual staff was of great assistance to both teachers and students, and the parking lot monitors were instrumental at such events as home games and the evening school classes. With all these valuable services, South was able to operate on a much larger scale than would otherwise have been possible.

Being a senior is the security of being on top, and the insecurity of being a freshman all over again. It is the last year of high school confinement, and the last year of careless freedom, for now is the time for serious decisions. It is winning the Homecoming float competition with "How the West Was Won," and leaving a lasting impression of the class on Maine South.

Being a Senior is looking forward to the days ahead and what they may hold. It is facing the new challenge of the future: a career, travel, or college life. It is knowing that when the time comes to return as an alumnus, everyone will remember the graduating class of 1971.

Cheerleaders and Pom-Pon girls carefully watched the progress of the Maine South football team.

Seniors showed typical Hawk spirit by backing their hard-working Maine South football team.

Everett Kruse proudly marched with the Honor Guard during an appearance of South's band.

Seniors were pleased that their float, How the West was Won, captured the first-place trophy.

Juniors: both lighthearted and serious

The junior class was instrumental in running South smoothly this year. They took the lead, along with the seniors, in voicing students opinions on such issues as library regulations and lounge privileges through class and student councils. The juniors planned ahead for the senior year by electing officers and approving the curriculum of events. They bore up well under the strain of college testing and school pressures. On the light side, the juniors made a good showing in the Homecoming parade with "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," and they topped off the year with their successful prom.

Mrs. Gillespie and Mr. Humen, with an enjoyment for students, were Junior Class Sponsors of '72.

Laurie Mester, Ann Carlson, Rob Lossman and Warren Yamakoshi served well as Junior Class Officers.

Sophomores proud of industrious class

The Sophomore class, now fully initiated into the trials and joys of high school, were experimenting with new aspects of school life. Now active members of South, they established their place in Homecoming float competition with a second place award. The class continued to shape the school by working with upper classmen on school improvements and projects. These activities gave them a sense of involvement that will become important next year as upper classmen themselves. The sophomores were also active in other areas of activity. The V-Show gave them a chance to perform, and the winning Cross Country, Track, Swimming, and Gymnastics teams bolstered a pride in the hardworking class.

Sophomore Class Sponsors guided their growing class through the year: Mrs. Roberts, and Mr. Bleeden.

By deciding upon important issues, Sophomore Class Officers proved their value to the class of '73. Mike Springston, President; Jan Daly, Secretary; Judy Daly, Treasurer; John Simms, Vice-President.

Freshmen awed by it all

The freshmen this year followed the tradition of walking into the hallowed halls filled with awe at the enormity and efficiency in which everything was run. They took pride in becoming part of the numerous activities, and many were heard to utter the ominous threat "wait 'til next year!" This threat included their homecoming float "Hang 'Em High" which gave them experience in competing with upper classmen and which turned out to be an enjoyable and worthwhile experience. The final realization that four years or more would be spent here at South was received with mixed reactions, but all agreed that Maine South was the best high school in the area.

Initiating a strong desire and drive into the new class of '74 was the ultimate task of Freshman Class Officers: Cheryl DeValle, Treasurer; Jeff Smith, President; and Belinda Blomberg, Secretary.

Keeping in shape

Keeping in shape is much more than calorie-counting. It is the exercise I get playing tennis in gym, or swimming after school, or playing volleyball on an intramural team. It is not just the dull toe touches, but learning to golf or fence, or even playing a rough game of soccer. All these activities, more than anything else, really keep me in shape.

I realize the importance of physical fitness. I have to make sure that I'm in top shape so that I will be able to do my best in the actual competition. Constant workouts and weight checks are a big part of my daily schedule.

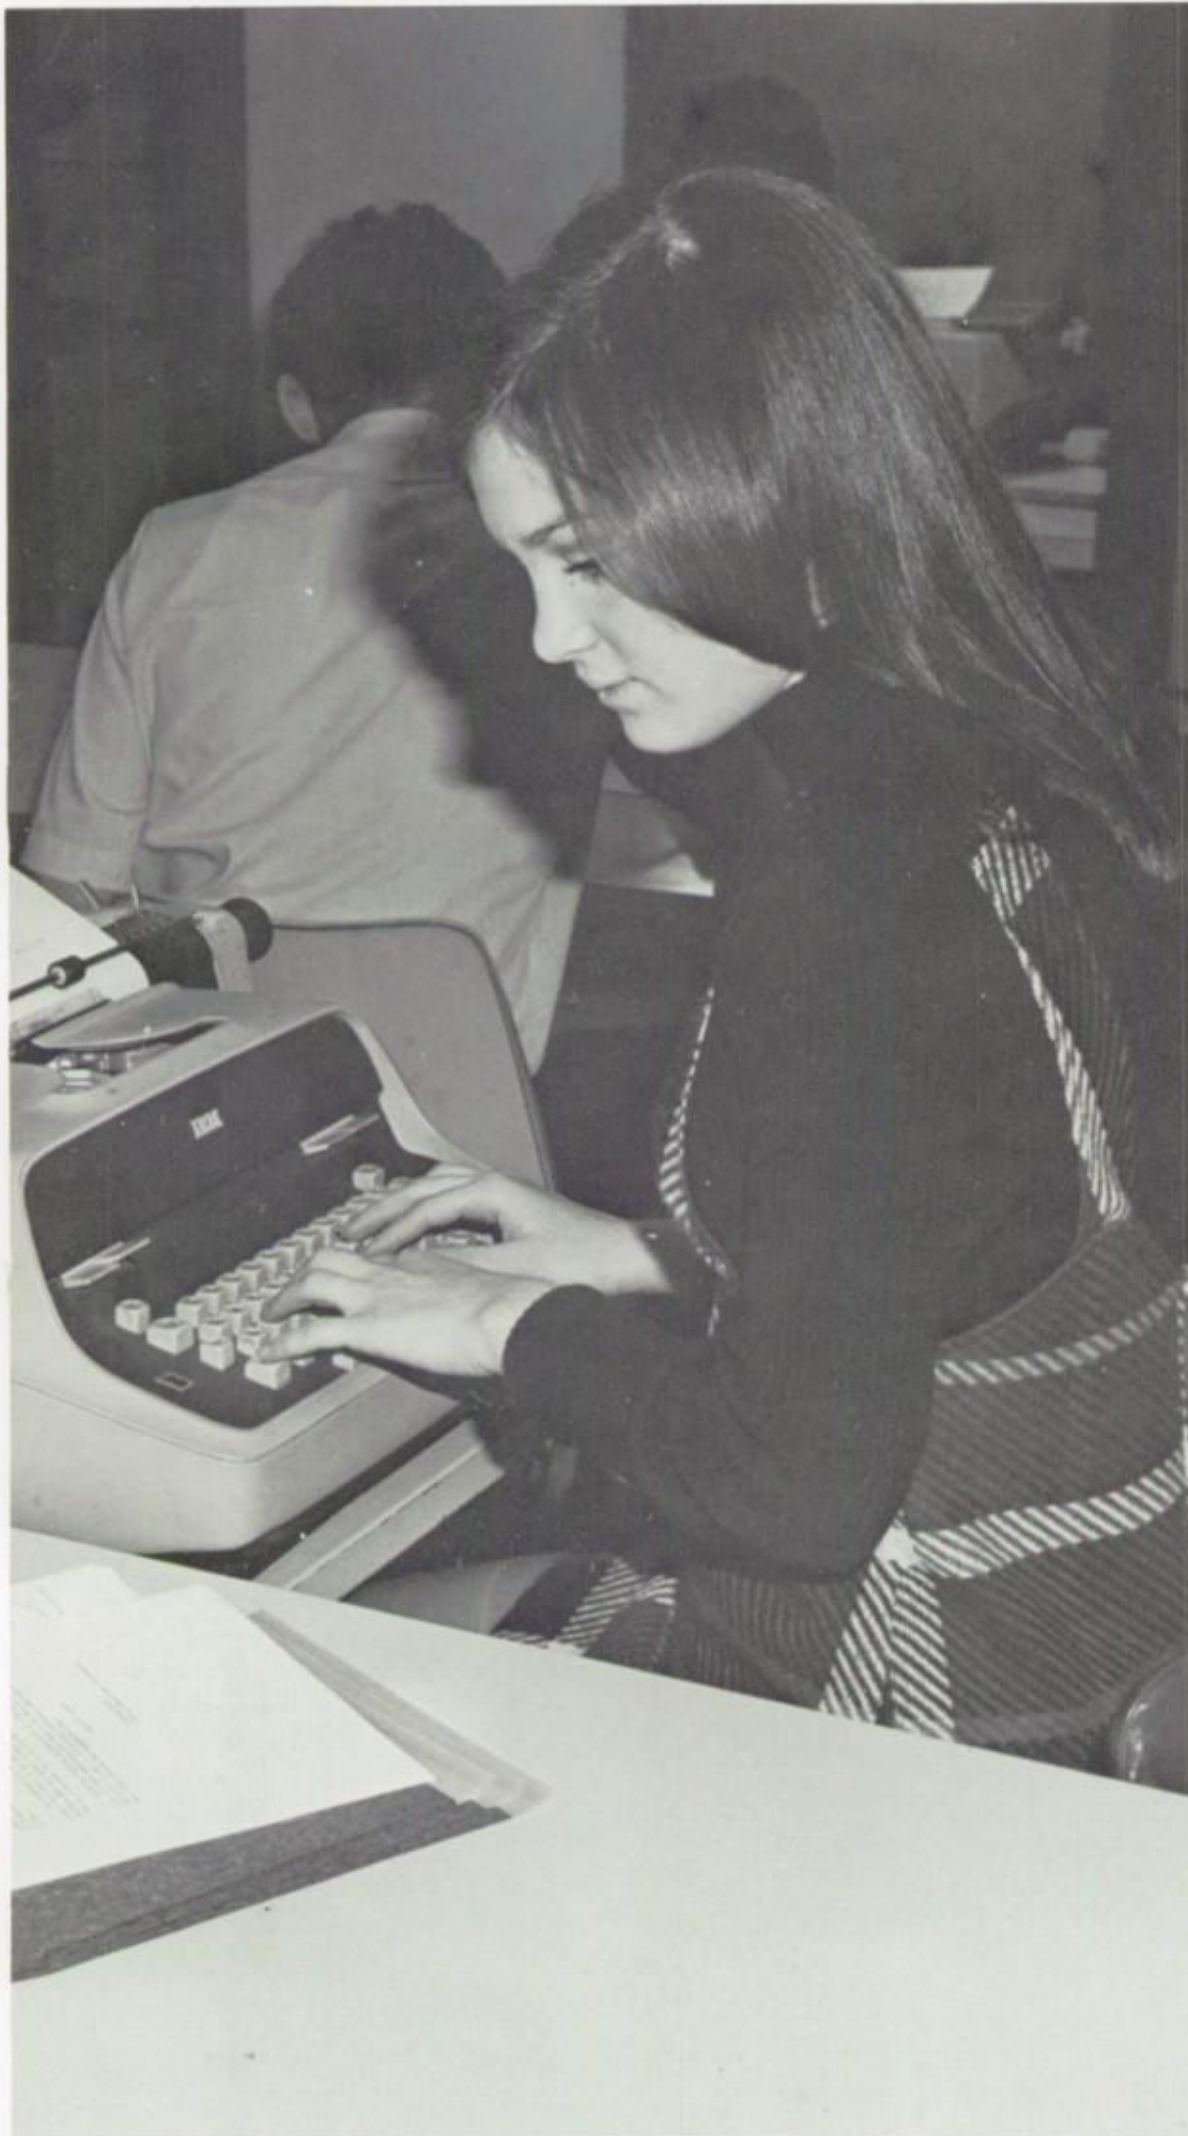

Living each day

Relaxing in lounge removes the tensions that have built up all day. I can look forward to seeing friends, talking out problems, or comparing funny occurrences. Even doing homework doesn't seem so bad when there are other people around to explain the harder problems or contribute ideas for an English theme. Getting together with others is an important part of Maine South life.

Routine may seem boring at times, but it is the everyday schedule that provides the background for the high points in high school life. Events such as ball games and special assemblies take on more meaning when they are compared with daily routine.

Sometimes school seems to be one big rush, with people running from one end of the school to the other, rarely stopping for even a quick "hello" to a friend. Even a wave seems too much to muster as the hall crowds push you along from class to class. The constant race with the clock gets to be tiring, and I sometimes wish for a chance to rest, to forget the rush. Then I see a friend come along, and I join the running crowd without giving the matter another thought.

Contemplating the future

My future is very important to me at this point in my life. When I was in grade school, I didn't have to worry about what I was going to do or where I was going to go. Now, these are the things that count, and much of my free time is spent in making decisions about schools and jobs. I have to plan carefully because the decisions I make now will affect my life for years to come.

Looking ahead can be fun: the excitement of commencement, the planning for college, and the first days as a freshman. All the work that went into high school seems finally worthwhile as the diplomas are handed out. Ahead are years of serious decisions, but for right now, graduation seems serious enough.

I often wondered why graduation was sometimes called "commencement." Now I know. Graduation is not an end. Of course, it marks the finish of more than twelve years of school, but these were years of preparation, to get ready for the possibilities of the future. Graduation is a beginning, a fresh start for the seniors who are on their way to college, a career, or travel, and the years behind are milestones by which to judge the events to come.

The 1971 EYRIE staff would like to thank the following for helping to make this year's EYRIE possible:

Administrators, faculty members, and students of Maine South.

Root Studio for their pictures of seniors, faculty, underclassmen, classes, and large groups.

Mike Charewicz, EYRIE photographer for his numerous candids throughout the book, Delmar Company for their printing.

Phil -

Good luck in the next few years. I'm glad I got to know you.

But it was a weird way in which we met. I did learn some Geometry from you. Be around.

Jean Ireland '72

Phil,

Good luck in the Air Force, you certainly pulled up history and math.
Bob Kellinger

Phil, this year has been pretty good. I & sure was nice of you to grace us with your presence at 3 big key club meetings. Seriously, though, you sure didn't miss much. Math this year has been memorable. Good luck at the USAF academy next year. Don't get shot down.
Scott Peterson

Phil,

These four years sure have gone fast, but it seems like ages since English with Mrs Baker. Remember? I've never enjoyed English so much. To bad bad we didn't sit next to each from the beginning of the year. Funnier things might have happened. I sure haven't seen you much these past two years. Good luck in the future & who knows maybe one day we'll happen to bump into each other.

Debbie Erpito

Philip honey - sitting next to you in history has been wonderful. Shaking Shirley with you has been rather tough though Philip, you're just made history more than you know what bearable - in fact I don't know when we do without you next year. I believe you come home for those years. You know shout leaves left years to come see me you're always welcome to. Philip at N.Y. I love you. You made friends
